FOWL TRAFFIC SIGN — A new traffic sign is posted along drive at the Marin Civic Center lagoon in San Rafael, Calif., to warn motorists of presence of waterfowl.

Rental Rates Spiral With End Of Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rent for a Chicago woman living on Social Security rose from $105 to $130 a month. Residents of a trailer park near Cape Kennedy, Fla., pay $42 a month for stalls instead of $30. A Washington computer saleswoman had her rent raised by 20 per cent.

The increases, typical in scattered parts of the nation, were ordered soon after the Nixon administration lifted its controls on rent Jan. 11.

An Associated Press survey shows that with the end of Phase 2 controls, rents climbed markedly in areas where vacant rental units are scarce, notably the Northeast.

For 14 months the administration had stuck to a leaky set of regulations that allowed rents to go up at least 2.5 per cent a year and as much as 10 per cent more in many cases. Even these guidelines applied only to larger apartment houses.

But with the absence of any guidelines and the flurry of new rent increases, calls have gone up for one or another form of rent control.

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., seeks federal rent control in any state where the percentage of vacant rental units drops below the national average. Rep. Gilbert Gude, R-Md., wants a federal rent-control board which would roll back all increases issued since Jan. 11 and would require rent increases be justified in advance.

Legislators are being spurred on by situations such as affect a 6-family row house in Harrison, N.J., located in the heart of the nation's tightest rental market.

Tenants in the turn-of-the-century building were paying $95 a month two summers ago. When the building changed hands, they were told their rent was going up to $150. But President Nixon clamped controls on the economy and the landlord, Philip Philip Beaulac, had to settle for a rent hike of $103.

This month, Daniel Skowronski, Frank Peist and the other tenants will have to pay $175. Skowronski and Peist said in an interview that they have families to support in the midst of an already inflated cost of living and can't afford the rent increase. Besides, the building is run down and the landlord "hasn't put one penny into it," they said.

Landlord Beaulac agreed that the building has been in bad shape since he bought it and said the only money he's put into it has been for emergency repairs.

He hasn't had any money to spend on the building because of the rent freeze, Beaulac said. "The tenants have just frozen themselves into a mess," he said of his building.

But tenants aren't the only ones trying to hold off on rents.

Shortly after Nixon lifted controls, the head of the National Apartment Association sent warning letters to his 30,000 members, who control three million rental units.

Robert Ross noted the law granting Nixon power to impose controls expires April 30.

"For the sake of the industry, let us not give Congress the excuse to impose rent controls in their consideration of the extension of economic-stabilization authority If at all possible, postpone your rent increases until Congress has acted on extension," Ross advised.

The Nixon administration refers to its current control powers as a big club, but for now federal officials dealing with rent complaints say there's nothing they can do.

Even during Phase 2 officials had trouble holding down rents.

Although the government could roll back many rent increases greater than 2.5 per cent, Bureau of Labor Statistics figures for 1972 showed that rents rose nationwide by 3.5 per cent.

One reason rents nationally outstripped the federal guideline was property taxes. The government decided they were a cost landlords could pass on to tenants without regard to the 2.5 per cent guideline. Property taxes shot up about 10 per cent nationwide in 1972.

An important factor in driving rents up is low vacancy rates. The 1970 census found the national average to be 6.6 per cent when dilapidated, perhaps uninhabitable, dwellings were included. The rate was 2.1 for New York City and 4.2 for Boston. Dallas provides a contrast. The vacancy rate is about 18 per cent. "So apartment rentals are self-regulated by supply and demand—with or without rent controls," said one landlord.

Twisters, Rain Hit Mississippi; Damage Reported

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes, rain and high winds swept up the Mississippi Valley today, causing property damage, threatening flash floods and cutting off electric power.

Tornadoes touched down in Mississippi near Cleveland, Belzoni and Independence, causing property damage but no injuries. Power lines and tree limbs were reported down at various locations in the state.

Six roofs were torn off at Cleveland, and a driver-training trailer was destroyed at Delta State College. Two brick and two frame homes were damaged heavily at Independence; at Belzoni, three tenant homes and a barn were destroyed and a trailer blown over.

Thunderstorms rumbled across parts of Mississippi and Alabama.

Young Apparent Victor In Alaska Congress Vote

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Don Young, a Republican and former riverboat skipper from Ft. Yukon, apparently has won Alaska's lone seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Young, a 39-year-old state senator, forged a commanding lead from strong urban support to defeat Emil Notti, former state Democratic chairman, in Tuesday's special congressional election.

With unofficial returns counted from 347 of the state's 433 precincts, Young led Notti 31,555-28,307.

The election was held to fill the House seat left vacant by Rep. Nick Begich, a Democrat who disappeared on a campaign flight last October. With Begich when he vanished were U.S. House Democratic Leader Hale Boggs of Louisiana and two others.

Power failures were reported on Chicago's North Side and in the north and northwest suburbs due to heavy thunderstorm activity. However, a flash-flood watch for Illinois and southern Wisconsin was canceled early today when the major storm activity moved out over Lake Michigan.

Rainfall amounts ranged up to 1½ inches from Western Tennessee to Wisconsin, with the greatest measurements in central Illinois and south-central Wisconsin.

Dense fog enveloped the Gulf Coast from south Texas to the Florida Panhandle. Fog and drizzle spread inland along the Atlantic coastal states from South Carolina to New Jersey.

Rain and snow spilled eastward from Southern California into the central and southern plateau regions. Travel advisories were posted in the mountains of the plateau, where 6 inches of new snow was expected.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 10 at Lander, Wyo., to 76 at Key West, Fla.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Bitter medicine for the United States and big pills for the Common Market were being concocted today by the European monetary doctors to ease the pain of the international crisis.

The palliatives—nobody dared hope they would be cures —will be presented Thursday to ministers of finance from the nine Common Market countries. Next day the spotlight moves to Paris. The ministers will be joined there by representatives of the United States, Japan, Canada, Sweden, Switzerland and Indonesia-15 countries in all.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz is expected to say if he is ready to submit to any treatment at all. The European ministers will make their own decisions at another meeting on Sunday, back in Brussels.

The proposals were put together by the Common Market's monetary committee at a two-day meeting.

The main things the Common Market wants to include:

—Some help in defending the new rates for the dollar set on Feb. 12. This could take the form of the United States buying back some of the 45 billion that major central banks have bought over the last two years or so.

To do this the U.S. government would have to sell some of its gold, which it does not want to do, or it could borrow billions of German marks and Japanese yen in what some experts call a "reverse Marshall plan." Unlike the money the United States gave away in the 1950's this would have to be repaid, and with interest.

—A curb on the flow of dollars out of the United States. This flow is of two kinds: the short term "hot money" that makes crises as it shifts rapidly from one country to another, and the long term investment capital that U.S. firms use to buy up foreign ones.

Restricting either kind would be contrary to the policies of the Nixon administration. "Hot money" could be attracted back by raising interest rates in the United States, but that might cause a recession. As for long term restrictions, Shultz announced at the time of the last devaluation that already existing ones would be abolished by the end of next year.

charged in accordance to how much they use the system. Sewerage rates are now based on the amount of water used and returned through the system.

A study was made of the water used by the laundry, according to Taylor, and it was estimated the cost of the sewer use at a little over five cents per load of clothes. Taylor pointed out the new sewerage treatment plant has to have special phosphate removing equipment built in and that laundry waste water contained large amounts of phosphates.

After the regular council meeting, members met with representatives of the Circleville Youth Baseball Program Inc. to discuss lighting a baseball field at Ted Lewis Park. Council indicated that $4,000 from Federal Revenue Sharing funds could be used for the project.

Councilman Gladden Troutman reported he had received many complaints about dust in the city's southeast section. Atwood Jones,

Situation Said Unchanged In Wounded Knee Meetings

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Militant Indians are demanding the ouster of the Oglala Sioux tribal president as their takeover of Wounded Knee enters its second week.

No shooting incidents were reported after the Indians called off a cease-fire at 8 p.m. EST Tuesday. The town was occupied Feb. 27, and guns were fired sporadically until the cease-fire was agreed to Saturday.

Talks between representatives of the 200 Indians in Wounded Knee and officials of the Justice and Interior departments were scheduled to resume at noon EST today.

Leaders of the American Indian Movement (AIM) say they will not give up Wounded Knee until the Interior Department revokes the 13,000-member tribe's constitution and removes Richard Wilson as president. Wilson was elected in December 1971 to a two-year term.

Some officials at Pine Ridge said they doubted the department would want to eliminate the constitution because that might be interpreted as a reversal of the government's policy to permit Indian self-government on reservations.

problem: How to reopen their official foreign exchange markets, closed all this week, and what to do about the rates that will emerge.

Leaders of AIM also want the government to protect persons involved in the Wounded Knee occupation, saying the militants fear retaliation from supporters of Wilson. The tribal president has threatened to lead an armed force of as many as 900 Oglalas into Wounded Knee.

Ramon Roubideaux, AIM lawyer, said after meeting late Tuesday with federal officials, "Nothing has changed."

Typhoid Epidemic Said Spreading In Labor Camps

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — Two young boys whose family moved from a typhoid-stricken labor camp here to another camp 100 miles north have been hospitalized with the intestinal disease.

Officials said Tuesday that nine other members of the family had been placed in quarantine at the Immokalee camp in Collier County.

Dr. Gunnard Antell, Collier County health director, said he thought there was "little chance" the disease would spread to the more than 10,000 farm-workers who live near Immokalee.

Meanwhile, health officials in Dade County confirmed 55 cases of typhoid at the South Dade Labor Camp and said 133 persons had been hospitalized in the largest outbreak of the disease in 17 years.

Council Approves $200 Pay Raise Beginning 1974

Circleville City Council raised its own salary schedule, effective January, 1974, during its regular meeting Tuesday. It is the first increase for councilmen since 1963 when the present $800 per year schedule was adopted.

Beginning next year, councilmen will receive $1,000 per year, payable quarterly. The legislation was passed after its third reading with all councilmen voting for the increase.

The ordinance had been introduced by Mayor Frank Barnhill who expressed the opinion that it was long overdue and should be acted upon before the May primary which might have an influence on the vote of the councilmen.

An ordinance authorizing the safety director, Ed Ebert, to negotiate mutual aid contracts with Harrison Twp., Pickaway Twp., Williamsport and New Holland Volunteer Fire Departments was approved at its second reading Tuesday.

Two ordinances introduced by the board of public utilities were held to a first reading. One authorized the Board to enter into a contract for detailed plans and specifications to increase the present water plant capacity, to install water softening equipment, to add to the city's storage capacity and to construct new water mains.

The other authorized the board to enter into a contract for detailed plans to eliminate the present lift station in the city's sewerage collection system and to make the entire system a gravity system. The lift station is located at Ted Lewis Park.

Charles Taylor, director of public utilities, noted that both ordinances were the result of extensive study and planning. The improvements and additions are needed for the water and sewerage systems to keep pace with the growth of the city and the has started on improving the city jail, using federal funds.

A communication from the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency announcing the approval of detailed plans for the city's sewerage treatment plant was read. Utilities Director Taylor said the city must now wait for federal approval and that actual construction could not start until it was received.

Safety Director Ed Ebert announced he and the fire and police chiefs are conducting interviews and will be hiring personnel soon.

Present for the meeting were Councilmen Ben Gordon, David Crawford, Keith Wagner, David Goldschmidt, Robert Kenworthy, Harold Hoffman and Gladden Troutman, Council President Joseph Bell, Clerk Robert Shadley, city attorney William Stevens and Mayor Barnhill. Other city officials included Ebert, Jones, Taylor, Fire Chief Bernard Wolfe, Police Chief Temple.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in active trading as the selling pressure on oil stocks, put under mandatory controls Tuesday, dragged down the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials.

Three of the oils are in the 30 industrials. The noon Dow was down 5.04 points at 973.96. Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange led declining issues 667 to 431.

"The news by the administration to put mandatory controls back in the group have wreaked havoc in the group," said Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co. "The administration was seeking to establish some sort of a test case in order to demonstrate their 'stick in the closet' resolve of Phase 3."

On the American Stock Exchange, the most-active issue was Champion Home Builders, down 1/8 at 8 1/2. The noon Amex price-change index was up .02 at 24.81.

On the Big Board, Texaco was the most-active, down 2 at 36 3/4.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,400 common stocks was down .017 at 60.98.

Widen Audit Of Drug Manual Funds

The state auditor's office has launched a widespread probe of drug education booklets being used by some Ohio sheriffs and police chiefs as advertising material.

John Blum, director of auditor's bureau of inspection, said he is concerned about how law enforcement officials are handling money donated by merchants and citizens to pay for the booklets titled "Drug Abuse: An Escape to Nowhere."

Blum said officials are placing the proceeds in private bank accounts in violation of a state law that says any money collected under the name of a public official must be deposited with a county or city treasurer.

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff says he has nothing to hide from distribution of the booklets which inform students of horrors associated with drug usage.

Four Charges Levied

Following Double Accidents

Harvey R. Shoemaker, 20, Route 1, Kingston, was charged with reckless operation, failing to stop after an accident, having no operator's license and desertion from the United States Navy following Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Lowell Ferguson's investigation of his second accident early Sunday morning.

According to Deputy Ferguson's report, Shoemaker, 20, who listed his address as Route 1, Kingston, drove a 1962 model car owned by Barbara S. Thacker, Kingston, into a fence on Boggs Road 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

He was eastbound on the road, 1-10 of a mile west of the Route 159 intersection, when he apparently missed a curve and drove into a ditch and fence. The car sustained only minor scratches.

Shoemaker apparently contacted friends who helped pull the vehicle from the ditch. The report indicates he drove to Chillicothe, but, in the process of returning home, wrecked the car again on Boggs Road, this time at 3:05 a.m. about a mile west of the first accident.

Deputy Ferguson said Shoemaker's westbound auto went off the right side of the road in heavy fog and drove off a bank. The car flipped over in a creek and remained on its top. Shoemaker broke a window in the vehicle to escape. The inside of the car was filled with about a foot of water from the creek.

Friends took him to Chillicothe Hospital for treatment of facial lacerations.

After detaining him on the traffic charges, Deputy Ferguson discovered that he was wanted by the Navy for desertion. He had been serving on the U.S.S. Enterprise until Aug. 30, 1972.

Deputies Jim Deal and Billy Huffman will charge 18-year-old Timothy Selva, 126 E. Mill St., with reckless operation later today following their investigation of a 10:15 p.m. accident on the Circleville-Florence Chapel Rd. south of the Red Bridge-East Ringgold Rd.

Selva told the deputies he was northbound on the road and had just crossed railroad tracks when his car skidded left of center for 100 feet, hit a bank, flipped around and then landed on its top. He was treated for a laceration to his right arm and head.

Deputy Warren Straley handled two accidents two minutes apart Tuesday at the intersection of Route 62 and Ballah Rd.

His report indicates a pickup truck driven by Ralph Pickering, 49, Derby, slammed into the rear of a car driven

"I was approached in 1970 by The Herald and the Circleville Chamber of Commerce to endorse distribution of the booklet. Since then we have distributed over 6,000 copies to high school students in the city and county," the sheriff said. "Its a worthy program and is well received in the area."

He said Gerbhart and Associates of Columbus, who handled the booklets in 15 counties and four cities, solicited donations for the booklets over a two week period. After cost of printing was paid, the excess funds, "roughly $600, were placed in an account in the First National Bank in the Pickaway County Sheriff's Drug Manual fund. Its my understanding that the excess money, the $600, is to be used by my department in other drug-related study. The contract specifies that the funds are to

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in active trading as the selling pressure on oil stocks, put under mandatory controls Tuesday, dragged down the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials.

Three of the oils are in the 30 industrials. The noon Dow was down 5.04 points at 973.96. Advancing issues on the New York Stock Exchange led declining issues 667 to 431.

"The news by the administration to put mandatory controls back in the group have wreaked havoc in the group," said Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co. "The administration was seeking to establish some sort of a test case in order to demonstrate their 'stick in the closet' resolve of Phase 3."

On the American Stock Exchange, the most-active issue was Champion Home Builders, down 1/4 at 8 1/2. The noon Amex price-change index was up .02 at 24.81.

On the Big Board, Texaco was the most-active, down 2 at 36 3/4.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,400 common stocks was down .017 at 60.98.

Widen Audit Of Drug Manual Funds

The state auditor's office has launched a widespread probe of drug education booklets being used by some Ohio sheriffs and police chiefs as advertising material.

John Blum, director of auditor's bureau of inspection, said he is concerned about how law enforcement officials are handling money donated by merchants and citizens to pay for the booklets titled "Drug Abuse: An Escape to Nowhere."

Blum said officials are placing the proceeds in private bank accounts in violation of a state law that says any money collected under the name of a public official must be deposited with a county or city treasurer.

Pickaway County Sheriff Dwight Radcliff says he has nothing to hide from distribution of the booklets which inform students of horrors associated with drug usage.

"I was approached in 1970 by The Herald and the Circleville Chamber of Commerce to endorse distribution of the booklet. Since then we have distributed over 6,000 copies to high school students in the city and county," the sheriff said. "Its a worthy program and is well received in the area."

He said Gerbhart and Associates of Columbus, who handled the booklets in 15 counties and four cities, solicited donations for the booklets over a two week period. After cost of printing was paid, the excess funds, "roughly $600, were placed in an account in the First National Bank in the Pickaway County Sheriff's Drug Manual fund. Its my understanding that the excess money, the $600, is to be used by my department in other drug-related study. The contract specifies that the funds are to be used for either reprinting the manual, sponsoring drug training courses or other uses. We have not touched the funds yet because we are waiting to see what direction drug problems will take in the county area."

Pickaway County is included in a list of 14 counties that will be examined by the audit. Other counties are Ashtabula, Crawford, Fairfield, Greene, Guernsey, Jefferson, Knox, Lorain, Montgomery, Richland counties, plus the Columbiana County prosecutor.

Municipal police departments at Vermilion in Erie and Lorain counties; Heath, Licking County; Marblehead, Ottawa County; and Sebring, Mahoning County, will also be audited.

"For a guy who has to run for public office, the booklet doesn't hurt," Blum said. "It's good publicity."

The booklets contain a photograph of the sponsoring law enforcement official, a letter by him on drug abuse, articles by the federal government on drugs and reprints of copyrighted articles by a Philadelphia, Pa. company.

Besides the advertising, Blum said the officials get 20 per cent of the money collected by a private promoter. The promoter gets 80 per cent for printing the book and other costs.

He said Gerbhart and Associates of Columbus has handled the booklets in the 15 counties and four towns being probed.

In the Clark County case, Blum said a state examiner was able to reconstruct the private checking account record from bank statements and cancelled checks.

He said about 280 persons donated $20,735 toward the booklet, but that only $17,320.32 was deposited. The state audit listed the balance of $3,414.68 as an unaccounted deficit.

Blum said the cost of printing 10,000 booklets would be about $5,000. There was no report on how many were printed for Clark County.

Spotlighting The Action

Visitors to Washington who are fortunate enough to look in on Congress when debate is occurring on the floor frequently ask attendants why so few members are present. The answer, as those familiar with the legislative procedure know, is that most of the action takes place in committee.

That is where most of the important decisions affecting a piece of legislation are made, where testimony is heard and where proposals are first submitted for consideration.

Tariff Strategy

Tariff negotiations, even more than trade pacts, frequently require a high degree of give and take by the participants. The resulting compromise may be far removed from the ideals expressed originally by the negotiators.

That was certainly so with the Trade Expansion Act of 1962, and the resulting round of tariff negotiations between the United States and industrial

More than that, the volume of business necessitates that most major bills and almost all minor ones are accepted or rejected by the members of the House or Senate as a body upon the recommendations of the respective committees.

Only the more controversial measures receive the full light of day once they reach the floor. Even then committee recommendation weighs heavily, for each member knows it will not help him win legislative objectives by constantly fighting the committees and their chairmen on bills released for floor action. If the public really wants to see legislators in action, the place to look is behind the frequently closed doors of committee hearing rooms. After years of balking, the House Democratic caucus this session is moving toward opening more of these doors to public scrutiny.

It has adopted a plan, expected to be approved by the House as a whole, requiring all committee sessions to be open to the public unless a majority of the committee members vote to close an individual session.

That action should help to lift the secrecy label from much legislative business, while permitting a committee to call executive sessions where the need is apparent to a majority of its members.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Whenever we have an argument and I lose my temper my wife says I am going through the male menopause. Can I tell her she's "off the beam"? Mr. S.E., Nev.

Dear Mr. E.:

It is not fair to explain your behavior disparagingly as a symptom of male menopause.

The term "male menopause" has lately been used indiscriminately when there are other more sensible explanations for changes that occur in men past middle age.

The word "menopause" comes from the Greek menos (month) and pauein (to cease).

"Menopause" means, therefore, the cessation of menstruation, and therefore has no real validity in reference to men.

Yet it is medically accepted that there are distinct changes and variation in the hormonal balance of men past middle age.

With these changes psychological alterations often occur which may even be associated with subtle personality changes.

Men threatened by early retirement (frequently unnecessary retirement) show evidence of emotional stress which needs a great deal of understanding rather than the derogatory and unkind criticism associated with the false term "male menopause."

important contributions they still can make.

I am anxious to have the wrinkles taken out of my face, and have just learned about a method that avoids surgery.

Can you tell me about this technique that "burns" the wrinkles off? Mrs. M.R.B. Calif.

Dear Mrs. B.:

Yes, I can. I can also tell you to steer clear of this dangerous method of burning and peeling the skin with one or more types of acid.

As a matter of fact, in your very state there was a flurry of excitement about a method that used the acid "phenol" to attempt to eradicate wrinkles and thus rejuvenate the appearance of the eyelids, the forehead, the face and the neck.

Public Health officials and the Medical Society of the State of California very quickly exposed the many hidden dangers involved in this potentially hazardous technique.

As protectors of the public health, these groups are responsible for educational campaigns to make people aware of the hidden dangers that lurk in tempting but medically unsound approaches to cosmetic surgery.

You can be certain that if there were complete safety and excellent results that were advantageous in comparison to those produced by surgery, reliable doctors everywhere would be employing these methods.

Plastic surgeons have refined their techniques extensively. The results are often spectacular.

Through your own doctor you can be directed to highly trained surgeons who can remove your wrinkles without introducing unnecessary hazards.

No-Fault Insurance

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

In 1971 there were 16,400,000 automobile accidents in the U.S. They involved 28,300,000 drivers (more than a seventh of the population), and resulted in 54,700 deaths (worse than seven years of the Vietnam War) and 2,000,000 injuries. Since the movement to substitute no-fault insurance for the ancient tort, or law of retaliation, system had barely gotten under way in 1971, the lawyers who represented aggrieved clients were living in clover. They are the ones who stand to lose most by the introduction of no-fault systems.

The year of 1973 will see profound changes in the system of automobile accident insurance, and there will no doubt be considerable gnashing of teeth in the legal profession. People will still sue in blatant cases, but all of them will be considering the idea of no-fault compensation for run-of-the-mill collisions.

At least half of the 50 states will probably have no-fault laws by 1974. Six of them — Massachusetts, Florida, Connecticut, Michigan, New Jersey, and New York — have fairly comprehensive laws already.

The insurance companies, unlike many of the lawyers, are not opposed to no-fault laws. But a good part of the industry tends to be skeptical of the effort to deal precipitously with the problem on a Federal level. As one who is thoroughly sold on the classical Brandeis-Frankfurter thesis that the states are the proper laboratory for untried economic experiments, I would accept the position of Vice President Thomas Morrill of the State Farm Company, who indicated to a Senate committee that it would be a mistake to formulate strict Federal no-fault provisions too soon.

One good reason for waiting on state experimentation is that geographical areas differ. The actuarial experts think that the cost of a benefit package must be considerably more in rural areas than in city areas. In the wide-open spaces there are many more single-car accidents, and the injuries tend to be more severe because they occur at higher speeds. City accidents are more apt to involve two or more cars colliding in the ten-to-30-mile-an-hour range. Writing a no-fault law for Montana and Nebraska would thus involve different rates from these appropriate to New York City or Boston.

Nobody, however, can be dogmatic about the cost of high-speed versus low-speed accidents in different parts of the country. The tort liability system has been abused in the past in urban areas, where people are more claim-conscious and thus inclined to magnify a fleeting pain in the neck into a chronic whiplash. Andy no-fault limitation on the tort system would tend to make for greater savings in city areas than in the rural states.

So where the balance lies between city and country, rates cannot be determined in advance of individual state experimentation. Congress should wait on that before passing a national no-fault law.

No - fault insurance would presumably, tend to favor the young driver over the middle-aged father of a family. The middle-aged driver tends to be more cautious, and insurance companies have favored him with lower rates. Teen-agers and men in their early twenties have traditionally had to pay more. Under no-fault, however, the situation changes. The premium would have to be based more on how much a policy holder stands to lose on an accident and less on how likely he is to cause one. Since the family man with a good job represents a greater possible loss to an insurance company than a slap-happy student, the insurance premium for the middle-aged would tend to rise under no-fault.

As for small car owners, they might have to pay higher rates than big car owners under no-fault. There is a greater chance of injury or death in a small car accident, particularly in case of collision with a truck.

Since nobody really knows how no-fault will work in detail, 1973 is surely not the year for Federal adoption of an overall law applicable everywhere. Let New York and Connecticut, Florida and Massachusetts, try it for a couple of years. Then if the system proves demonstrably better than the old tort system, Congress would be in a position to write a comprehensive law for all the states.

Returnee Talks Little

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Army Capt. John G. Dunn, 30, is willing to talk a bit to outsiders about his almost five years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam—but not much.

Capt. Dunn and his wife arrived here Sunday night from Fort Knox, Ky., where he had been undergoing physical tests and debriefing since being returned from Vietnam.

He is a native of Hutchinson, Kans., but his wife is from here. They met while he was training in Fort Benning, Ga. and had been married only 10 months when he was sent to Vietnam.

Asked Monday night how he was treated while he was a prisoner and how he felt about anti-war demonstrations in this country, he said he did not want to talk about those subjects.

"I have to re-adjust myself to society," he said, commenting on his plan.

Eleven more Circleville and Pickaway County youths left Circleville for Fort Hayes, Columbus, to be assigned to army stations for training.

Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy were starring in "Keeper of the Flame" at the Cliftona Theatre. Henry Fonda, Maureen O'Hara and Thomas Mitchell were featured in "Immortal Sergeant" at the Grand.

The Pickaway Pirates turned back Ashville, 28-23, to win the Pickaway County championship. Bobby Young, Pickaway's sterling sophomore center, was the big gun as he hooped 14 points in the contest.

Circleville stores, especially those selling women's ready-to-wear clothing, coped with a minor buying panic. The buying spree came on the wings of rumors that clothing rationing was going to be put into effect.

Pickaway County farm leaders planned a county-wide rally on National Farm Day, marking the tenth anniversary of a meeting held in Washington from which stemmed a change in government policy to farmers.

Writing a no-fault law for Montana and Nebraska would thus involve different rates from these appropriate to New York City or Boston.

Nobody, however, can be dogmatic about the cost of high-speed versus low-speed accidents in different parts of the country. The tort liability system has been abused in the past in urban areas, where people are more claim-conscious and thus inclined to magnify a fleeting pain in the neck into a chronic whiplash. And no-fault limitation on the tort system would tend to make for greater savings in city areas than in the rural states.

So where the balance lies between city and country, rates cannot be determined in advance of individual state experimentation. Congress should wait on that before passing a national no-fault law.

No-fault insurance would presumably, tend to favor the young driver over the middle-aged father of a family. The middle-aged driver tends to be more cautious, and insurance companies have favored him with lower rates. Teen-agers and men in their early twenties have traditionally had to pay more. Under no-fault, however, the situation changes. The premium would have to be based more on how much a policy holder stands to lose on an accident and less on how likely he is to cause one. Since the family man with a good job represents a greater possible loss to an insurance company than a slap-happy student, the insurance premium for the middle-aged would tend to rise under no-fault.

As for small car owners, they might have to pay higher rates than big car owners under no-fault. There is a greater chance of injury or death in a small car accident, particularly in case of collision with a truck.

Since nobody really knows how no-fault will work in detail, 1973 is surely not the year for Federal adoption of an overall law applicable everywhere. Let New York and Connecticut, Florida and Massachusetts, try it for a couple of years. Then if the system proves demonstrably better than the old tort system, Congress would be in a position to write a comprehensive law for all the states.

Returnee Talks Little

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Army Capt. John G. Dunn, 30, is willing to talk a bit to outsiders about his almost five years as a prisoner of war in Vietnam—but not much.

Capt. Dunn and his wife arrived here Sunday night from Fort Knox, Ky., where he had been undergoing physical tests and debriefing since being returned from Vietnam.

He is a native of Hutchinson, Kans., but his wife is from here. They met while he was training in Fort Benning, Ga. and had been married only 10 months when he was sent to Vietnam.

Asked Monday night how he was treated while he was a prisoner and how he felt about anti-war demonstrations in this country, he said he did not want to talk about those subjects.

"I have to re-adjust myself to society," he said, commenting on his plan.

Eleven more Circleville and Pickaway County youths left Circleville for Fort Hayes, Columbus, to be assigned to army stations for training.

Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy were starring in "Keeper of the Flame" at the Cliftona Theatre. Henry Fonda, Maureen O'Hara and Thomas Mitchell were featured in "Immortal Sergeant" at the Grand.

The Pickaway Pirates turned back Ashville, 28-23, to win the Pickaway County championship. Bobby Young, Pickaway's sterling sophomore center, was the big gun as he hooped 14 points in the contest.

Circleville stores, especially those selling women's ready-to-wear clothing, coped with a minor buying panic. The buying spree came on the wings of rumors that clothing rationing was going to be put into effect.

Pickaway County farm leaders planned a county-wide rally on National Farm Day, marking the tenth anniversary of a meeting held in Washington from which stemmed a change in government policy to farmers.

Foreign Chinese Suffer From Identity Crisis

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

SINGAPORE (AP) — The 22 million Chinese who don't live in China have an identity crisis. The mirror leaves no doubt they are the overseas Chinese, but many are not sure what their heritage means as China itself discards some of its ancient customs.

"It's the hardest thing in the world to be now," says an American of Chinese descent who lives in Taipei. "You never know what you are."

A Singapore girl with Chinaborn parents and a British husband sums up her situation: "Culturally, I'm Chinese. Socially, I'm Singaporean. Intellectually, I'm international."

Many of these people would like to settle in and assimilate where they are, but often that's difficult. Large numbers can't attain citizenship in Southeast Asian nations their great-grandfathers helped to build.

Peking's emergence as a world power has given them something besides Ming vases to fire their pride, awakening a major wave of cultural and ethnic feeling from Mauritius to Manhattan.

"I could never live in China," runs a typical comment. "But now, as a Chinese, I feel proud."

The China Travel Service in Hong Kong is deluged with overseas applicants wanting to visit the homeland. Officials estimate about 100 American Chinese go in each month.

Overseas Chinese who return report they were treated well, especially if they spoke the language. They were separated from other foreigners.

Girls 'Adopt' Grandparents

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP)—A total of nine Amelia, Ohio high school girls have volunteered and are undergoing training in a program to aid the elderly called "Adopt-A-Grandparent."

The PTA-sponsored program has been set up in cooperation with the Clermont County Welfare Department.

"The first adopted grandparent was so impressed with the attention given her by her new granddaughter that she just stood there and wept when the girl left," said Mrs. Lois Dale, director. She heads the senior services division of the welfare department.

She stressed that none of the students will "adopt" without training and continued supervision by experts. The program will be expanded if it proves successful, said Mrs. Dale.

The students offer transportation, help in running errands or simply companionship.

Authorities discouraged them from mingling too freely with local Chinese.

To many, communities overseas are more "Chinese" than China. Visitors back from Peking report surprise at how things differed from the mental pictures—or memories—they had brought with them.

"When the Chinese went overseas, the culture just froze for them," observed one Western expert. "They hung on to what they remembered because they had to have something to keep them Chinese."

In Peking, a dead relative is dispatched without great ceremony. In Kuala Lumpur, women are hired to wait as the departed uncle is trucked behind a brass band to the crematorium where mourners eat noodles and drink brandy.

Those with fortitude, patience and luck tour the mainland. A number come out disillusioned but a few find their fires stoked for seeking change back home.

"I didn't feel particularly proud but I was impressed—all the people you meet in China share the same views," said Pang Cheng Lian, a respected Singapore journalist who is ethnically Chinese.

"When I went to China," she said, "I kept asking myself, 'I'm supposed to be Chinese—how should I be feeling?' Strangely there was some sort of affinity."

"Ultimately language is the important thing."

For others, it's more than language. "So you don't like toufu," joked a culturally wounded San Francisco Chinese when a Jewish friend disdained bean curd in a Hong Kong restaurant. "Order some salami."

Tax Exemption

Proposal Fought

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Gilligan Administration opposes a bill that would exempt Ohio servicemen serving outside the state from the state income tax, a Senate committee was told today.

Tax Commissioner Robert J. Kosydar said the income tax was based on the ability to pay.

"The military does have an ability to pay," Kosydar said. "Because of the benefits they receive, they often are in a better position to pay than civilians."

Thyme is an excellent seasoning to add to veal and pork.

Children Of Tomorrow

To Hendrik Gideonse, a dean at the University of Cincinnati, being a father is more of an around-the-clock activity than for most. Dr. Gideonse made news months ago by taking his 10-month son, Hendrik, Jr., to work with him.

"I just looked at my schedule and saw I'd be out of the house three or four nights a week and said, 'Nuts, I'm not going to see my son only when he's sleeping in a dark crib,'" he explains. As for Mrs. Gideonse, she said that she was delighted with her free time for errands and volunteer work. "The purpose was partially to free me," she noted, "but mostly it makes Hendrik feel together."

Does little Hendrik, Jr., represent the wave of the future? Will the growing diversity of our life styles also affect traditional child-rearing in this country?

According to Cornell University psychologist, Dr. Urie Bronfenbrenner, both children and parents might mutually benefit by spending more time together "not just after work and on weekends." Children, he says, are often given "the leftover of adult time and energy." He sees more flexible work schedules as well as "higher status part-time jobs" in the future accommodating parents and helping children "learn and develop" with them.

All other things being equal, says Dr. Bronfenbrenner, he sees as closer to "ideal" a job situation "where your child can visit, where he or she is not looked upon as a creature from another planet." In the future, he suggests, "the family might emerge as a priority in business decisions."

Another authority in the field of family relations, Dr. Jessie Bernard, sociologist and author of "The Future of Marriage," concurs with the idea. Sharing of parental roles more equally between men and women, she feels, might also help to take some of the strain off "troubled" marriages. "The idea is gaining currency of having both husband and wife share not only the provider role but also the child-care role," according to Dr. Bernard.

Yet another family expert who agrees with the premise of more equal roles for both parents is Dr. Eleanor B. Luckey, president of the National Council on Family Relations. Speaking at a seminar on "The Family in the Future," sponsored by the Institute of Life Insurance, Dr. Luckey suggested the child-rearing will become more participatory as men and women do more "sharing" of their private and public life together. She sees both parents functioning possibly as "teams" in the house as well as in their jobs.

As to the future of child-rearing outside the immediate family, some of the changes as seen by "Family in the Future" panelists, who included Dr. Marjorie East, president of American Home Economics Association, and Monsignor James T. McHugh, director of the Family Life Bureau, U.S. Catholic Conference, are:

Reversal of educational emphasis, with greater attention given to infancy and early-childhood education rather than college-level schooling.

Children's intellectual development to be a subject as much attention as their physical growth; with educators as well as physicians advising and assisting youngsters and families.

More emphasis on extended kinship systems, in which children are brought up in families living with friends who share the same values and views, irrespective of age, sex and blood ties.

Hearing Slated Over Licensing Of Ohio Hospitals

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A public hearing will be held March 12 in suburban Boston Heights on the possibility of licensing hospitals and other health facilities in Ohio.

State health director Dr. John W. Cashman said the hearing was called because "Ohio is the only state without a hospital licensing program."

Cashman said the departments also want to "develop community health facilities and services while preventing expensive duplications" through issuance of "certifications of need."

Three other such sessions will be held in other cities at later dates.

2 Nursing Homes Back In Good Stead

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Two nursing homes that were removed from the Medicaid program two months ago have been reinstated by the state Welfare Department after correcting deficiencies to meet state nursing home standards.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The federal government has dropped its suit against a Cincinnati bakery firm which had been cited on 30 counts of unsanitary conditions.

The suit was dropped Tuesday after Federal Bake Shops Inc. produced documents from an exterminating firm and the Cincinnati Department of Health that infractions cited by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration had been cleaned up.

The firm last January recalled 20,000 gingerbread men because they were contaminated by rodents.

Nation's Students Turn To Volunteer Work

By LYNNE OLSON
Associated Press Writer
A new kind of student activism, involving hundreds of thousands of young people, has quietly taken root in many U.S. high school and college campuses. Students say they're out to improve society and themselves, not by protesting or confrontation, but by volunteering their time and talents to social service agencies and community groups.

"Volunteering is the 'in' thing to do now at school," says Maria White, a Boston University sophomore who works with retarded children.

Examples of the surge of student volunteerism are:

—The number of students — elementary through college — involved in Red Cross volunteer activities has increased by 600,000 in the last two years.

—At Furman University in Greenville, S.C., more than half the 2,000 students participate in 55 volunteer projects. In one, students teach college janitors and maintenance men how to read and write.

—At Boston University, the number of students volunteering for community programs has more than doubled in the past two years. "We've been flooded by students," says Carol Moore, director of student volunteer services.

—At Franklin High School in Livonia, Mich., 300 students put in thousands of hours each week on several projects, including the presentation of anti-drug seminars to parents and the tutoring of elementary school pupils. When the program started five years ago, only 18 students were involved.

In the last 10 years, the number of college student volunteers has skyrocketed from 5,000 on about 30 campuses to about 400,000 at more than 80 per cent of the nation's colleges and universities, according to figures compiled by the federal National Student Volunteer Program (NSVP).

About 600 schools have organized volunteer programs. About 200 offer credit for volunteer work, NSVP officials say. They say the number is growing steadily.

No figures are available for high school pupils, but there seems to be a similar explosion of interest in volunteering, says Jeanne Carney, NSVP director. She says more than 500 high schools have organized volunteer programs, with many giving credit.

Students say they're volunteering to help people as well as meet their own needs for relevance, personal involvement and career testing.

"Young people are turning inward in this country. They're developing a greater interest in other people. And they're more concerned about the quality of life in the United States," says Nicholas W. Crow, head of recruiting for ACTION, the government volunteer agency.

ACTION is in charge of the Peace Corps and VISTA programs. Crow says applications for both, declining in recent years, are now shooting up dramatically.

Peace Corps applications, he says, are running 37 per cent higher than last year, and VISTA applications are up 46 per cent. Most are from persons under 25.

Several students, school administrators and government officials said they thought a number of young people who were involved in social protests, particularly those against the Vietnam war, have turned to volunteering.

"The young people who lived through demonstrations wanted to do something concrete, something they could see and feel, as opposed to abstract protests," says Bob Cooney, an ACTION spokesman. "They wanted to feel they could make a difference."

Jeff Warren, an official of the private National Center for Voluntary Action in Washington, D.C., sees another stimulus for volunteering. "Some of the other movements of the '60s — civil rights, consumer, women's lib — showed students that individuals could indeed change things. They didn't need to feel helpless."

Kennedy Family

Items Auctioned

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Some 500 items belonging to the Kennedy family went on the auction block in suburban Brook Park Tuesday night, according to the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The newspaper said 138 of the items were from Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis' Manhattan apartment. Other items included a trombone belonging to the late John F. Kennedy's son, John, and a pair of Louis XV commodes that belonged to Kennedy's daughter, Caroline.

Burke-Hughes, the Lakewood auctioneers, said the auction will continue tonight and Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

Chamber Helps Bring Navy Band Here For Concert

Circleville Area Chamber of Commerce is assisting the local Navy recruiters in getting the "Fly in the Soup."

At its meeting Tuesday, the C of C board heard initial plans by the local naval recruiting office to bring a Navy music unit, "Fly in the Soup," here for a concert.

The recruiters have sought the aid of the Chamber to arrange a location for the March 21 concert. The band performs rock hits but blends in dance music and show biz tunes for everyone's enjoyment.

Announcements concerning the Retail Merchants Assn. meeting today and April 7. At today's meeting, the merchants had as its guests the city council and mayor. Next month, the merchants are to discuss the Occupational Safety and Health Act and its effect on the small businessman.

A legislative meeting with County Commissioners Dick Tootle, Wayne Hines and Bob Liston has been set for March 12.

The Chamber welcomed Jim Woodward, manager of the Firestone Store, and Calvin Danvord, manager of Columbus Gas, as guests.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

(Q) If I don't answer the revenue sharing questions on my tax form, will it delay any refund I may have coming?

(A) Probably not. However, the Internal Revenue Service may correspond with you for the missing information.

(Q) My tax form asks what locality I live in. What do you mean by "locality?"

(A) This is the municipality—the incorporated city, town, borough or village—in which you live.

If you did live inside a municipality, enter its name in the space provided. If you did not, leave the space blank but check the box provided. Be sure to enter the name of your county in the space provided, and the name of your township if it is a governmental unit.

(Q) My family doctor lives 20 miles away and it costs me several dollars to drive to his office, park and return. Are there expenses deductible as medical expenses?

(A) Yes. If you itemize deductions, payments for travel costs to get medical care are deductible. You may deduct the amounts paid for gas, oil, parking fees, etc. but not depreciation, or deduct a standard mileage rate of 6 cents for each mile you use your car for medical purposes. When using the standard mileage rate, you may deduct parking fees and tolls in addition to the 6 cents per mile. Amounts paid for bus, taxi or plane fares, as well as for ambulance hire, also are deductible.

Remember you deduct only those medical expenses that exceed 3 per cent of your adjusted gross income.

(Q) Are Blue Cross-Blue Shield premiums deductible?

(A) Yes. If you itemize, you may deduct one-half of the amount you paid for medical care insurance up to $150, without regard to the 3 percent limitation on medical expenses. The remainder is added to your other medical expenses and is subject to the 3 percent rule.

(Q) Where can I get a copy of the official IRS tax guide?

(A) IRS Publication 17, "Your Federal Income Tax," is now available at most Internal Revenue Service offices, U.S. Government Printing Office book stores and many post offices. The cost of the 1973 edition of "Your Federal Income Tax" is 75 cents.

(Q) Have there been any changes in the Social Security tax rate for 1973?

(A) Yes. The rate is now 5.85 percent for both employers and employees. In addition, the maximum amount of wages subject to social security tax has been increased to $10,800 for wages paid in 1973.

China Books Going Well, Report Shows

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A plain storefront shop that started selling Communist Chinese books and magazines a few years ago is now a booming business with branches in New York City and Chicago.

"Business has doubled in the past year," said Henry Noyes, 62, owner of China Books and Periodicals. He says his firm is "the largest distributor in the Western world" of mainland Chinese writings.

"I'd say we have about 10,000 customers on our lists," Noyes said. They include individuals, museums, nearly all college and university libraries, journalists, authors, government agencies and China-watchers, he said.

In his headquarters here, the shop he started 12 years ago, the shelves are loaded with every English-language publication produced in the People's Republic of China.

Silken posters of Communist leaders hang on the walls. Fragrant Chinese soaps share a table with baked enamel pins of red stars and Red mottos.

Nearby is a shelf with a selection of children's books, including "revolutionary comic books" for older children. Titles include "Immortal Hero Yang Ken-sze" and "Commander Yang's Young Pioneers." The little tots can amuse themselves with "Huang Chi-kuang, a Hero to Remember."

Noyes, who was born in Canton, China, to Presbyterian missionary parents, also sells a line of Hanoi-published writing, much of it political.

Cigarette Sales End At Prison

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio Prisoners' Labor Union complaint about the sale of confiscated cigarettes has led to the discontinuation of the practice at the London Correction Institution.

"It was decided today (Monday) to destroy the cigarettes instead of selling them after the department auditor checked into the situation," an Ohio Department of Correction and Rehabilitation spokesman said.

The department spokesman said that whenever cigarettes or cigars are confiscated during prison gambling raids or whenever a prisoner has more cigarettes than he is allowed, it has been the practice to sell those confiscated and use the money for the Industrial and Entertainment Fund.

Jury Selections Slows Down In Prater Murder Trial

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — As jury selection continues in the trial of alleged Yablonski slayer William J. Prater, prosecution witnesses are flocking into local motels from as far away as the Tennessee coalfields.

Prosecutor Richard Sprague has summoned more than 100 potential witnesses to this lakeside town, and they continued to arrive as jury selection moved through its third day today.

Nineteen pensioned coal miners from the hills of Tennessee arrived together by plane Monday and were quartered at a fashionable local motel, with the federal government picking up the tab.

The former miners have been subpoenaed to testify about the mechanics of a United Mine Workers fund from which Prater and others allegedly financed the killings of UMW insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and his wife and daughter.

Prater, 53, a former UMW organizer from LaFollette, Tenn., appeared at

The screening of jurors bogged down Tuesday, and only two of the 49 persons questioned were accepted, bringing the total chosen in two days to seven.

The latest additions, both from Erie, were Roy Gustafson, a father of three who works at a local paper mill, and Mary Peters, a housewife.

8 The Circleville Herald, Wednesday March 7, 1973

Among those rejected Tuesday was Marsha Raszowski, a young, expectant mother.

Asked if jury duty would pose a hardship, she smiled and responded, "If it lasts longer than four weeks, yes."

That sent a wave of laughter through the small third-floor courtroom and drew a broad grin from Prater himself.

Jury candidates were chosen from the voter rolls and some were college students. Four begged off, saying their studies would be interrupted.

Satellite Photos Pinpoint Pollution Of Environment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Telltale imagery recorded by a satellite 560 miles above the earth may be used in a lawsuit against a paper mill accused of dumping waste into Lake Champlain, space scientists say.

The photographs taken by the Earth Resources Technology Satellite (ERTS-1) clearly show pollution from a paper mill on the New York side of the lake, scientist A.O. Lind said Monday.

He said Vermont is seeking an order to prevent further pollution. The satellite photographs of the pollution plume the lake have been turned over to Vermont's attorney general for possible introduction into the lawsuit now under way, Lind said.

Other ERTS photographs have shown that acid wastes are being dumped into the ocean off New York harbor "a few miles closer to Jones Beach than should be permitted," the scientists said at a government-sponsored symposium.

This also is a matter for possible future litigation, they said in reporting on usage of ERTS data.

The pictures and data, as described at the opening of a four-day National Aeronautics and Space Administration symposium in suburban New Carrollton, Md., also showed that:

—The railroad track that arrows through Utah's Great Salt Lake, in effect, has divided that lake into two bodies of water, with the area to the north showing up red in satellite imagery, and that to the south blue. The satellite results indicated that additional culverts should be cut through the rail bed to provide circulation and prevent further deterioration of the lake's mineral resources and brine shrimp.

The Circleville Herald, Wednesday March 7, 1973 9

—There has been no obvious damage to the Alaskan landscape from oil-well drilling in that area over the last two decades.

—The rate of erosion in Southern Arizona has accelerated greatly and is rapidly changing the shape of the region's small canyons. Extrapolation of ERTS results indicates there has been more erosion in the past 80 years than in the 10,000 years preceding.

Pollution Cleanup Slow Process

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Industrial waste pipes polluting Ohio streams today may be ordered cleaned up tomorrow. The trouble is tomorrow isn't likely to arrive for at least three months.

Ohio's new Environmental Protection Agency has catalogued about 90,000 industrial smokestacks and 25,000 plants, cities and schools it must police for pollution. It looks like a tough job. Goodyear

Tire & Rubber Co. has 30 more smokestacks than EPA has employees — 225 stacks to 195 pollution policemen. "There may be a few thousand smokestacks we don't know about, too," said an EPA spokesman.

PPG Industries was a special case not likely to occur too often, but it illustrates the paperwork and legal delays that slow the pace of anti-pollution campaigns.

The firm originally scheduled its soda ash plant to close when its permit expired Dec. 31, 1972. Then, in November, the firm applied to the state for an extension to March 31, 1973, on the basis that other suppliers could not meet customer needs.

Dr. Ira L. Whitman, director of EPA, denied the request in a letter dated Jan. 29. He told management the plant pollutes the Tuscarawas River with soluble chlorides.

The pollution, EPA said, constituted a serious obstacle to the development of the river basin for recreation and for use as a portable water supply.

But, the EPA decision can't go into effect for 30 days, which makes the plant shutdown come no earlier than March 6.

PPG Industries probably can keep open by appealing to the Environmental Board of Review, or even to state courts, and keep going until March 31 — date it wanted to reach in the first place.

EPA has $6 million to spend fighting pollution for the fiscal year ending next July, and it hopes to gain just a bit on the smokestacks. By June, there should be about 400 EPA employees, and one day as many as 700 may be in the field.

Give Former Mental Patients A Break

DEAR ABBY: While watching the news on TV tonight, a prominent news commentator in reporting a crime, said: "The suspect is believed to have been a former mental patient."

I agree, if one has committed a crime, and has been a former mental patient, this fact should not be withheld. But until all the facts are in, such a statement serves only to equate former mental patients with crime, which I think is unfair.

I am not, nor have I ever been a criminal. But I am . . .

A FORMER MENTAL PATIENT

DEAR FORMER: I agree with you and appreciate your writing. This is a plea to all reporters and news commentators to refrain from mentioning that a suspect is "believed to have been a mental patient." There are many, many recovered mental patients who are already handling more than their share of prejudice. Let's give them a break.

DEAR ABBY: Years ago I met and casually dated (twice) a highly intelligent and interesting young man. We seemed to hit it off very well. Then one day he phoned (I am sure to ask me for another date) and my father answered the phone. I was in the next room and heard him say: "She isn't home, and I don't know when she'll be back." The he hung up abruptly. He knew I was home, Abby. When I asked my father who had called, he told me, and added: "I told him you weren't home because he is not for you!"

I had no way of calling him back because he was only visiting in the city at the time.

There was no logical basis for my father's attitude.

I am in my thirties and still single. I learned that this man is unmarried and is now living in this city. I would like to meet him again, but don't know how to go about it. Any suggestions, please?

YOUR FAN

DEAR FAN: Find a mutual friend and try to arrange a get-together with other people. If the attraction is still there, you'll both know it. If not, nothing ventured, nothing gained.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 22-year-old junior in college. About four months ago I left home (against my parents wishes) and moved into an apartment. You would think a 22-year-old girl would be mature enough to take care of herself, but I led a very sheltered life.

Anyway, I met a young man while shopping downtown, and he suggested coming over to my apartment to talk and I agreed, thinking he was an "okay" person.

Well, it turned out he wasn't and now I am nearly two months pregnant. My mind is all in a turmoil. I think I want an abortion. I spoke to my pastor about it, and he said I should be practical and make a decision I can live with. There is no way I can have this baby, Abby. I know there are hospitals that perform abortions, but I don't know which ones they are or how to contact them. Would my parents have to know? How expensive would it be? Please help me.

ALL ALONE
DEAR ALONE: Get in touch with your Planned Parenthood office. They will not only provide you with the answers to your questions, but they'll offer you counseling and guidance. Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Allen County Sheriff Faces Contempt

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Allen County Sheriff Edward L. Fair has been ordered to show cause why he shouldn't be held in contempt of court in Hamilton County.

The case involves a sanity hearing in a murder trial.

Hamilton County Common Pleas Judge William Mathews issued the order Monday in a case in which George H. Wadley, 45, was charged in 1969 with second-degree murder in the fatal shooting here of Mrs. Etha Mae Young.

Judge Mathews said Fair has "failed five times to serve subpoenas on me" for the appearance of doctors who examined Wadley at the Lima State Hospital.

Wadley was sent to the hospital in December, 1969, and doctors said a year later he was sane and could stand trial. He then was brought to the Hamilton County Jail.

Judge Mathews said subpoenas were issued last Feb. 23 but were not served until March 2. Then, he said, the doctors had cases in other courts and could not testify here.

Butler Employees

May Get Pay Boost

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — Cale L. Logsdon, president of the Butler County Board of Commissioners, said Monday most county employees will be in line for a 4 to 5 per cent wage increase under a proposed budget.

He said the proposal covers all employees who have not received an increase this year. He said the county expects to wind up with a $151,092 balance instead of an expected half million dollar deficit.

Couple Fights To Win Legal Right To Child

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Seven years ago an unwilling mother gave her 7-month-old baby to Jack and Josephine Allen.

The Allens called the baby Stevie and brought him up as their own. "We would like to have kept him, and loved him for the rest of our lives,"

Campus Notes

Debbie Sue Hatzos has received a scholarship award to pursue cosmetology training at the Ohio State School of Cosmetology in Columbus. Miss Hatzos was one of the winners from over 300 Ohio-area applicants, and ranked at the top in evaluations by the Scholarship Board of the Ohio State School. She received highest recommendations from her high school officials.

DEBBIE HATZO

Miss Hatzos is the daughter of Jack L. Hatzos and resides with her father in Tarlton.

Annually, Wichita State University holds an assembly to honor its students for consistently high academic achievement. At the March 11 convocation, one of those students to be honored will be James W. Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Davis, Route 1, Mt. Sterling.

Davis will be a recipient of Sophomore Class Honors. He was also named to the Dean's Honor roll for the fall semester.

Sue Barnhill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Park St., is doing practice teaching at the Alger Elementary School in the Upper Scioto Valley School System at McGuffey.

Sue is a senior, and student at Ohio Northern University.

Nancy Benzenberg Lammers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence D. Varble, 526 Northridge Road, was named to the Dean's List at Stephens College in Columbia, Mo. She earned highest honors for the first semester of the 1972-73 school year. Students with highest honors have grade point averages between 3.8 and 4.

Graphic designs for commercial and other uses by eighteen Miami University art students made up the Feb. 11-16 exhibit in the student-managed Little Gallery of Hiestand Hall on the Oxford campus.

The artists, juniors and seniors in Miami's School of Fine Arts, included Deborah Lynn Moore, 319 Woodlane.

The displays consisted of package designs, logos, and other ideas for use in company or institution identification and promotion.

Jody Gay Ferguson, Circleville, has been named to the Dean's Honor List at Berea College for the first semester of the 1972-73 year. Jody is in her sophomore year at Berea. Grades of B or better in all classes are required to qualify for the honor list.

September Young and Linda Fosnaugh, both seniors at Logan Elm High School have been accepted by Bliss College in Columbus.

September, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Young, Route 1, Stoutsville, has chosen to take her training in fashion merchandising and will begin her preparation Sept. 10.

Linda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Fosnaugh, Route 1, has elected to take training in secretarial work. Her preparation will also begin Sept. 10.

A Pickaway Countian, John E. Browning, was named to the College of Engineering's Dean's Honor List at the University of Cincinnati.

Mrs. L.K. Topouzian (Nancy Goodchild), daughter of Mrs. E. M. Hundley, 355 Markley Drive, received a B.S. degree in nursing from Loyola University in Chicago on Feb. 4.

In 1965, she completed her studies as a registered nurse at Christ Hospital in Cincinnati.

Her husband is an orthopedic surgeon at the Weiss Memorial Hospital, Chicago, but the couple and their son reside in Skokie, Ill.

Robert Allen Kellough of Circleville, was among 205 students named to the Dean's List for the first semester at Cumberland College, Williamsburg, Ky.

To make the Dean's List, a student must compile at least a 3.25 grade point average for the semester's work and have a cumulative average of at least 3.00 on all previous work.

Capital University's Dean's List includes the name of Deborah Streitenberger, Route 1, Stoutsville.

Karen Susan Foster, Meadow Drive, was one of 31 women initiated into the Ohio Northern University chapter of Alpha Lambda Delta. This is a national scholastic society for freshman women who have accumulated a grade point average of 3.5 or above.

New Member Welcomed By Kiwanis

LYNN HUERMAN

Circleville Kiwanis welcomed a new member, Lynn Huerman, at its Monday night session, and made plans for the upcoming election.

A committee of past presidents was chosen to select a roster of candidates for offices. These men are: Waldo Martin, Dwight Steele, Dick Penn, Bob Wilson, Harold Clifton, Charles Hart, Jim Shea, Virgil Cress, Bert Bennett, Tom Bennett and Doyle Painter.

The program for the evening was a film relating the survival of wildlife with the increase of reconstruction of natural shelters.

Members were invited to attend the 7:30 Wednesday morning Key Club meetings. John Dowler, a member of Key Club, issued an invitation to all members of Kiwanis to a sport and exercise night March 26 at 6:30 p.m.

Drivers' Licenses With Photos Delayed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Issuance of drivers' licenses with color photos may be delayed six months until next Jan. 1 because Highway Department officials believe they have found a better method of doing it.

By using a dual-camera, instant photography method, a department spokesman said, licenses could be issued over-the-counter while still providing a state file of the photo.

said Mrs. Allen, now 47. Her 55-year-old husband nodded.

The Allens loved Stevie so much they tried to adopt him. That's when trouble began.

The other day Montgomery County officials took Stevie away from the Allens. Probate Court ordered the child to be placed into another home awaiting adoption. The Allens may never see him again.

"I was working at Henrici's seven years ago as a saladmaker," said Mrs. Allen. "This woman, a white woman, had a baby. She also worked there."

"She said that the father was Mexican, but we thought he was probably a black man. The lady there told me, 'Josephine, you love children. Why don't you take the baby in?'"

"I had lost a child at birth a few weeks before. Well, I told her it would be a joy to do it." Mrs. Allen's fingers picked nervously at the edge of an overstuffed chair.

"So we brought Stevie home. We had our own son, Jackie, who was three at the time, and we raised them as brothers. We love them both the same, and Stevie brought great joy into our lives."

Jack Allen, a foundry worker for 16 years, said, "We tried to give Stevie the best home possible. He never has wanted for anything. He sure got lots of love. We didn't even put him down as an income tax dependent because we didn't know if it was legal."

A year ago, concerned about Stevie's future, the Allens began the adoption proceedings. Hearings followed investigations. The legal mother then signed consent forms making the child a ward of the Montgomery County Children's Services Bureau.

After investigators and adoption counselors testified the Allens were not suitable parents, Probate Court ruled the child should be taken from them.

When the officials came, Stevie cried and screamed. "Don't let them take me," he said. He now is in a temporary foster home awaiting adoption.

"We were in the middle," said Charles Caton, executive director of the Children's Services Board. He called the case "a tough one." "We had to follow the court's ruling in this matter," he said.

Bill Werner, who handles bureau legal matters, said, "There were problems in the home. We think it would be unkind to list them."

Mrs. Allen said, "The man who came and took Stevie told me he thought I had a drinking problem. This is simply not true. I had a drink of brandy the day he came. Sure, wouldn't you, too, if part of your life was being yanked out from under you? It was the first drink I'd had in years."

Werner said he thought the Allens' ages and the health of Mrs. Allen contributed to the court decision.

Mrs. Allen stood up in her church Sunday morning and told the congregation, "I have loved this child, and my own son, too, with all my heart. My parents always told me that when you give love, you receive love. But, something has gone wrong. I need the prayers of everyone here."

A neighbor, Mrs. Cecil Whitaker, is trying to raise community interest on behalf of the Allens. "Jack and Jo are proud people," she said. They are far from wealthy, but they have what is necessary, and the children have always been well-cared for.

Couple Fights To Win Legal Right To Child

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Seven years ago an unwilling mother gave her 7-month-old baby to Jack and Josephine Allen.

The Allens called the baby Stevie and brought him up as their own. "We would like to have kept him, and loved him for the rest of our lives," said Mrs. Allen, now 47. Her 55-year-old husband nodded.

The Allens loved Stevie so much they tried to adopt him. That's when trouble began.

The other day Montgomery County officials took Stevie away from the Allens. Probate Court ordered the child to be placed into another home awaiting adoption. The Allens may never see him again.

"I was working at Henrici's seven years ago as a saladmaker," said Mrs. Allen. "This woman, a white woman, had a baby. She also worked there."

"She said that the father was Mexican, but we thought he was probably a black man. The lady there told me, 'Josephine, you love children. Why don't you take the baby in?'"

"I had lost a child at birth a few weeks before. Well, I told her it would be a joy to do it." Mrs. Allen's fingers picked nervously at the edge of an overstuffed chair.

"So we brought Stevie home. We had our own son, Jackie, who was three at the time, and we raised them as brothers. We love them both the same, and Stevie brought great joy into our lives."

Jack Allen, a foundry worker for 16 years, said, "We tried to give Stevie the best home possible. He never has wanted for anything. He sure got lots of love. We didn't even put him down as an income tax dependent because

Transit Increase Cut

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Transit has cut its fare hike in half under pressure from Mayor Ralph J. Perk. The five-cent hike will put regular fares at 50 cents starting Sunday.

When frightened, the horned toad pretends to be dead.

we didn't know if it was legal."

A year ago, concerned about Stevie's future, the Allens began the adoption proceedings. Hearings followed investigations. The legal mother then signed consent forms making the child a ward of the Montgomery County Children's Services Bureau.

After investigators and adoption counselors testified the Allens were not suitable parents, Probate Court ruled the child should be taken from them.

When the officials came, Stevie cried and screamed. "Don't let them take me," he said. He now is in a temporary foster home awaiting adoption.

"We were in the middle," said Charles Caton, executive director of the Children's Services Board. He called the case "a tough one." "We had to follow the court's ruling in this matter," he said.

Bill Werner, who handles bureau legal matters, said, "There were problems in the home. We think it would be unkind to list them."

Mrs. Allen said, "The man who came and took Stevie told me he thought I had a drinking problem. This is simply not true. I had a drink of brandy the day he came. Sure, wouldn't you, too, if part of your life was being yanked out from under you? It was the first drink I'd had in years."

Werner said he thought the Allens' ages and the health of Mrs. Allen contributed to the court decision.

Mrs. Allen stood up in her church Sunday morning and told the congregation, "I have loved this child, and my own son, too, with all my heart. My parents always told me that when you give love, you receive love. But, something has gone wrong. I need the prayers of everyone here."

A neighbor, Mrs. Cecil Whitaker, is trying to raise community interest on behalf of the Allens. "Jack and Jo are proud people," she said. They are far from wealthy, but they have what is necessary, and the children have always been well-cared for.

Drivers' Licenses

With Photos Delayed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Issuance of drivers' licenses with color photos may be delayed six months until next Jan. 1 because Highway Department officials believe they have found a better method of doing it.

By using a dual-camera, instant photography method, a department spokesman said, licenses could be issued over-the-counter while still providing a state file of the photo.

PORK - ITS PLACE IN YOUR DIET

Pork is now included in the circle of respectable meats for dieters. As the result of selective breeding programs and changes in feeding methods, pork now has more protein, less fat and fewer calories. As American life has become more sedentary, the need for energy from pork fat has lessened. So pork has changed to fit the need of a less active population with weight problems. Today, an average serving of pork has only 240 calories in contrast to 377 just a few years ago. Those old wives' tales of pork being a fatty food were further discounted when The Diet Workshop, a national organization of weight control classes, announced that it was adding pork, important for its contribution of thiamine to the diet, to the list of meats approved for its members.

OBES Chief Bans Group From Offices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Bureau of Employment Services Director William Barnes said that he has no quarrel with the Unemployment Workers Organization Committee as a group, but that it is the policy of his bureau not to allow disrupting actions in the bureau's buildings.

The committee filed suit in U.S. District Court in Cincinnati Monday claiming that its members were denied access to the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services (OBES) building.

The organization is described as being made up of unemployed workers, their families and those threatened with future unemployment. It claimed that Barnes would not permit it to seek signatures and distribute literature within the OBES building at Columbus. The group is seeking to extend compensation benefits from 26 to 39 weeks.

Garnes said he thinks the objective and goals of the organization are good, but that if he let one organization carry on that type of business, others would want to do the same.

He noted that other organizations, including labor groups, have been banned from similar actions in employment bureaus across the state.

Business Bad For Bartenders

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Greater Clevelanders are still drinking, but the neighborhood barroom business is falling off.

"More people are drinking at home," says John Vingard of the bartenders union. "The bartender's role has been cut in half."

Tavern owners attribute the drop in barroom business to the availability of prepared mixes and wines and the patron's fear of robbery coupled with incoming tax bills and charge-account Christmas bills.

Controlling Board Releases Funds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— The release or transfer of about $22 million in state funds was approved by the State Controlling Board Monday.

Among items approved was $927,000 for Cleveland State University to purchase property at Euclid Ave. and E. 18th St., and the transfer of $44,754 from one fiscal year to another at the request of the Ohio Board of Regents.

The Board also approved a request from the Department of Finance to transfer $13.8 million from fiscal 1972 to 1973 to meet increased costs arising from salary adjustments for state employees.

Friends Spring To Defense Of Vinton Doctor

MCARTHUR, Ohio (AP)— Loyal patients of Dr. Altaf Hussain, the only physician in Vinton County, have sprung to his defense against his critics as a result of a story last Jan. 10.

In a series of letters printed in the Athens Messenger, a half dozen patients expressed their faith in the Pakistani doctor, those 16-month practice in this county seat and at Nelsonville in adjoining Athens County has caused some controversy.

Some of that disagreement was reported in an Associated Press story last January.

"Regardless of what they say," wrote Donnie Kinnison of Radcliff, "a great many Vinton County people agree that he is not only a very good doctor, but a friendly and interesting person as well."

"I was one of Dr. Hussain's first house calls, an emergency, and I am most appreciative," wrote A. Graves of McArthur. "I think Vinton County owes Dr. Hussain a debt of gratitude for settling here."

"I do not agree with people who say Vinton County's Dr. Hussain will see patients only during office hours," wrote David Weyand of McArthur. "He gave our football team our physicals on Sunday. I think he is a good doctor, and I hope he stays."

Dr. Hussain said, "I attempt to give all patients consideration."

The 40-year-old physician said, "I wish to state that my office hours on Monday, Tuesday and Friday of each week are from 2 p.m. until such time as there are no longer any patients to be seen, regardless of how late in the afternoon or evening it may be. My Thursday morning office hours are from 9 a.m. until noon, or later if there are additional patients to be seen."

"On Wednesday I serve in a professional capacity at the Washington Center, which is located in Jackson County, and is a service provided by Community Action."

"The remainder of my office hours are indefinite as I will treat any patients who call me, day or night, and if I am away from my office, my wife takes the messages for me, and I see the patient or patients upon my return."

Dr. Hussain said he had seen as many as 80 patients in one day.

In a letter addressed to the Chillicothe Gazette, Linda L. Hinson of Londonderry wrote: "The statement saying that Dr. Hussain will not see anyone only during office hours between 9 and noon is definitely not true."

"I am one of his patients and I have had appointments during evening hours ever since I began doctoring with Dr. Hussain because I work from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. and do not wish to take time away from my work to consult my physician."

Dr. Hussain said his relationship with the McArthur chiropractor Dr.

Herman Shuttleworth, is good, and he has referred patients to me on occasion."

"The statement that I would not see patients who have been to a hospital, chiropractor or other physician is incorrect," he said.

Roy Sowers of McArthur told The Messenger how Dr. Hussain treated his brother for a possible heart attack "at almost midnight" and his daughter on a Sunday.

"Recently our son's little boy was running a fever and vomiting," Sowers wrote. "It was after office hours so he called the doctor's house. He said to bring him right up to the house. He examined the little fellow right in his home, and gave him medication, and told them if they ever needed him, day or night, to call and he'd be there."

"How many other doctors would see you at odd hours and on Sundays?"

"I have found Dr. Altaf Hussain of McArthur to be a good reliable doctor," wrote Robert H. Brotherton Sr. of Hamden. "He saw me during an emergency although I was not his patients, and he did not know me from Adam, and it was his day off."

"I know other people that have called him late at night and he saw them without complaining."

"He not only sees his patients at their homes," wrote Melvin Lee of McArthur, "but in serious cases has even had people come to his own home for examination after office hours."

The Messenger reported receiving only one critical letter, a New Plymouth man, Garnet Lough, asserting that his son, injured in a motorcycle accident, would have to have waited for an hour for treatment at Dr. Hussain's office.

Recalling that case, Dr. Hussain said he explained to the man they were separated by some distance. He said that while he would be happy to see the son it would have taken at least 45 minutes for them to meet.

"We consider him an asset to the community, and pledge our full support," wrote Kinnison, reflecting the general tenor of the letters printed by The Messenger.

Congressman Harsha's Washington Report

Earlier this year, the Administration announced the termination of grants for the Farmers Home Administration rural water and sewer facility program. This week, Congress is considering legislation which would rescind this action by making the program mandatory.

Certainly, there is a great need for such assistance to rural areas. And, knowing their impact on and importance to many communities in the Sixth District, I have supported rural assistance programs along this line in the past. There are several reasons, however, why I believe this particular legislation is no longer needed at the present time.

The primary reason for eliminating this program was not to hinder rural communities but to avoid duplication and waste in the Federal government. Previously, funds for sewage treatment facilities were available from at least three different agencies: the FHA, the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Environmental Protection Agency. In this case, however, quantity did not necessarily mean quality. The funding ratios, as well as the often rigid qualifications and restrictions varied from agency to agency. Applying for funds proved a difficult and often confusing process for many local officials.

Moreover, program duplication such as this costs the U.S. taxpayers a considerable amount of money. For example, it would cost the FHA over $2 million just to administer the rural water and sewer grant program for fiscal 1973. Considering the obvious and urgent need to hold down Federal spending and to make the most of what we are spending, consolidation is not only practical but also very necessary.

Besides putting the sewage programs under one roof, however, my most important concern is that grant funds for waste disposal facilities are still available to rural communities through other programs and on more favorable terms. The Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972, which I co-authored, make substantial amounts of funds available through the Environmental Protection Agency. There are certain advantages to EPA funding: EPA sewer grants provide for 75 per cent of the facility cost as compared to the 50 per cent limitation for FHA grants, and EPA grants are block grants which enable state and local agencies to determine their specific needs.

Water systems, where necessary, could also be financed by Federal revenue sharing money. In addition, the FHA will continue the water and waste disposal loan program for those communities unable to obtain the necessary financing to repair or develop urgently needed facilities.

Those who argue that the special rural grant program should be continued question whether the smaller communities would fare as well in funding allocations from EPA when the larger urban areas would also be seeking the same funds. This is not necessarily the case. Again the matter of priority and the fact that these priorities can be determined on the state and local level is important to remember. Renewal Plan Hits Quarter Of Community

CINCINNATI (AP)—A dilapidated frame house was torn down Monday, marking the start of an $8.2 million urban renewal program in Lincoln Heights, a Cincinnati suburb.

Lincoln Heights Mayor James Lowry called it the beginning of a program that "will have a major impact on the lives and life styles of all our citizens."

The program, financed with $6.2 million in federal funds and $2 million in non-cash contributions will raze almost a quarter of the Lincoln Heights community.

It will replace sub-standard homes with 343 single and multi-family homes, a five-acre shopping center and a 21-acre industrial park.

Lowry said 12 per cent of the demolition and construction work force will be Lincoln Heights residents and the industrial park will provide 400 to 450 jobs.

Lincoln Heights, a city of 6,100 has an unemployment rate of 27.3 per cent—reportedly the highest of any city in Ohio.

Training Tough For Policewomen

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Lucie Hammond, 98 pounds and 5-foot-2, dumped 6-foot-1 Dave Lillash's 180-pound frame onto training mats at the police academy—and wondered later whether she'd be able to get out of bed the next day.

She is one of 15 women among 188 rookies in the Cleveland Police Department who have completed their first week of extensive training at the academy.

For the first time in the department, females will be assigned to patrol cars. Their partners will be men.

Side-by-side, the rookies are undergoing the same academic study and physical training.

"They don't expect us to be experts when we get here," Mrs. Hammond said, but the women must hold their own to graduate April 13.

The move into basic patrol cruisers ends 40 years of restricting women to a bureau which investigates crimes concerning females and children. It also ends the police force's 50-woman limit.

The changes were won by Women's Law Fund, Inc., Cleveland, which specializes in sex discrimination cases.

Why do the women want the jobs? "Since I was a little kid I thought cops were great," said 5-foot, 115-pound Mary McGee, "and I always wanted to be a policeman." She is completing work for a sociology degree in night school.

Former school teacher Karen Kilroy, 30, says she "loved teaching, and I miss the children, but I was ready to try something different." Her interest was whetted by married friends.

Phyllis Trappenberg and Marilyn Dura are married to policemen. Rookies Michele Derlo, Margaret Novak and Maryanne Kingzett are daughters of policemen.

But Dana Garcia, 24, said she was shocked by word that women will be assigned to squad cars. "I don't think they should be in the cars," she said, "but if I have to, I would want to be with a trained person, a man who knew what he was doing."

"Women have their place on this job," said John Horvath, the academy's tattooed, self-defense instructor. "Everything will work out all right."

The only bleeding injury that week was to Mary McGee's left thumb, pinched by a pistol hammer while she was loading a gun at the shooting range. Instructor Hubert Humpel told her, "We don't give out purple hearts." But he applied the bandage personally.

Mills Trial Jury Hung

McARTHUR, Ohio (AP)—The Clinton County Common Pleas Court trial of Oliver Mills on charges of shooting with intent to kill and intent to wound a former Vinton County deputy sheriff ended Tuesday, after less than a day in court, with a hung jury.

The 61-year-old Mills is serving a one-to-20-year term in the Chillicothe Correctional Institution on a conviction of involuntary manslaughter in the shooting death of Vinton County Sheriff Harold Steele.

On Aug. 31, 1970, Steele and Deputy Dave Wilbur went to serve legal papers to Mills at his Swan Township farm because he refused to obey an easement ruling in favor of a utility company.

Mills shot and killed Steele and allegedly wounded Wilbur. The incident touched off a week-long manhunt in the Vinton County hills by local and state law officers. Hocking County Judge Harley Meyer presided at the trial. Only three witnesses were called.

Taft Sponsors Bill

On Import Equalization

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Robert Taft Jr., R-Ohio, cosponsored a bill Tuesday to broaden government help for workers, firms and communities suffering from increased imports.

The proposal would make federal assistance available for the first time to communities whose industries were hurt by imports and would make aid to industries, firms and workers available whenever imports are found to be a substantial cause or threat of injury.

Congressman Harsha's Washington Report

Earlier this year, the Administration announced the termination of grants for the Farmers Home Administration rural water and sewer facility program. This week, Congress is considering legislation which would rescind this action by making the program mandatory.

Certainly, there is a great need for such assistance to rural areas. And, knowing their impact on and importance to many communities in the Sixth District, I have supported rural assistance programs along this line in the past. There are several reasons, however, why I believe this particular legislation is no longer needed at the present time.

The primary reason for eliminating this program was not to hinder rural communities but to avoid duplication and waste in the Federal government. Previously, funds for sewage treatment facilities were available from at least three different agencies: the FHA, the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Environmental Protection Agency. In this case, however, quantity did not necessarily mean quality. The funding ratios, as well as the often rigid grant qualifications and restrictions varied from agency to agency. Applying for funds proved a difficult and often confusing process for many local officials.

Moreover, program duplication such as this costs the U.S. taxpayers a considerable amount of money. For example, it would cost the FHA over $2 million just to administer the rural water and sewer grant program for fiscal 1973. Considering the obvious and urgent need to hold down Federal spending and to make the most of what we are spending, consolidation is not only practical but also very necessary.

Besides putting the sewage programs under one roof, however, my most important concern is that grant funds for waste disposal facilities are still available to rural communities through other programs and on more favorable terms. The Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972, which I co-authored, make substantial amounts of funds available through the Environmental Protection Agency. There are certain advantages to EPA funding: EPA sewer grants provide for 75 per cent of the facility cost as compared to the 50 per cent limitation for FHA grants, and EPA grants are block grants which enable state and local agencies to determine their specific needs.

Water systems, where necessary, could also be financed by Federal revenue sharing money. In addition, the FHA will continue the water and waste disposal loan program for those communities unable to obtain the necessary financing to repair or develop urgently needed facilities.

Those who argue that the special rural grant program should be continued question whether the smaller communities would fare as well in funding allocations from EPA when the larger urban areas would also be seeking the same funds. This is not necessarily the case. Again the matter of priority and the fact that these priorities can be determined on the state and local level is important to remember. It is also important to note that the present EPA effort to assist small towns is considerable and is expanding. For the first six months of

3 Tourney Berths Unfilled

NEW YORK (AP) — Only three berths remain uncommitted in the nation's two postseason college basketball extravaganzas, and even those are pretty much spoken for.

All spots in the NCAA Championships have been doled out to conference champions or at-large teams, or are reserved—either for the champions of conferences whose races have yet to be decided, such as the Big Ten or Southeastern, or for the winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference's playoff tournament this weekend.

And the National Invitational Tournament has already received acceptances from 13 schools—Notre Dame, American U., Virginia Tech, Fairfield, Rutgers, Manhattan, Missouri, Oral Roberts, Louisville, Massachusetts, Southern Cal, New Mexico and Marshall—for its 16-team field.

Who'll get the three open NIT berths?

"We are watching the Big Ten, the ACC and the SEC races," declared Peter A. Carlesimo, chairman of the NIT selections committee. "If any of our choices from those areas don't accept, then we'll look into the independents situation again."

The Big Ten race is tied between third-ranked Minnesota and ninth-ranked Indiana. Each has one game remaining Saturday; should both win or lose, a playoff would be necessary to determine who gets the league cro and the NCAA invitation. The NIT will almost certainly invite the loser.

In the ACC, second-ranked North Carolina State is ineligible for the NCAA or NIT. That leaves eight-rated North Carolina and No. 10 Maryland, the defending NIT champion. The NIT will be happy with either one.

Kentucky and Tennessee are tied for the SEC lead. They'll meet at Lexington, Ky. Thursday night, with the winner getting the title and the NCAA. The loser might get an NIT invitation, or one might go to third-place Alabama—or the NIT may decide to look elsewhere.

Only one major tourney team was in action Tuesday night, as each club in the AP Top Twenty had the night off. NIT-bound Virginia Tech boosted its record to 18-5 by whipping West Virginia 76-53.

The Gobblers, after struggling in the early going, took a 13-point halftime lead and romped in the second half. Al-len Bristow led the winners with 18 points and 10 rebounds, Charlie Thomas added 17 points and reserve Calvin Wade scored 16 points and grabbed 13 rebounds.

Georgia Tech, getting 20 points from Steve Sherback, gave retiring Coach "Whack" Hyder a royal sendoff in his final home-court appearance by beating arch-rival Georgia 77-67. Hyder, who has a 292-270 record in 22 years of coaching, closes out his career at Georgia State Saturday night.

In other major college games, Scott Wedman scored 19 points and grabbed 19 rebounds to lead Colorado past Nebraska in a Big Eight clash 71-63; Brown of the Ivy League beat Rhode Island 71-59, and Long Island U. whipped Seton Hall 62-59.

Tom Hall Ponders Encore Possibilities For Cincy

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Cincinnati Reds' lefthanded relief pitcher Tom Hall isn't sure what he can do for an encore.

"I guess I've got to go 12-0 this year," Hall grinned Tuesday.

Last season the skinny lefthander was a standout, winning 10 of 11 decisions as the Reds earned the National League crown.

The 25-year-old Californian not only was nearly perfect in his won-lost record, but his earned run average was 2.61, and he struck out 134 hitters in 124 innings.

"That 10-1 record was hard to believe, especially in my first year in the league," said Hall, who came to the Reds from the Minnesota Twins for righthanded relief pitcher Wayne Granger in the winter of 1971.

When Hall came to the Reds he wasn't sure he wanted to spend his time in the bullpen. He figured he also could start, and proved it at times when forced into the rotation.

It was, in fact, Hall who turned in Cincinnati's first complete game of the 1972 season when he hurled a three-hit shutout against St. Louis May 14, striking out 13 batters.

But he now is convinced his home is in the bullpen along with Clay Carroll and Pedro Borbon.

"The bullpen is where it's happening," he said. "I've had my best years when I was in the bullpen. It's quite a feeling coming into game after game knowing what you do makes a difference between winning and losing."

Pete Rose Signs Pact With Reds

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Pete Rose fell short of the $120,000 he wanted to play baseball for the Cincinnati Reds this year, but not by much.

Rose negotiated by telephone Tuesday with Sheldon "Chief" Bander, Cincinnati's director of player personnel, and agreed to terms.

"I wanted $120,000 and they offered $117,500," said Rose, "and we negotiated and reached a figure we were both very happy with."

Rose planned to participate in his first spring workout with the Reds here today.

The Reds welcomed two other stars Tuesday, with second baseman Joe Morgan and first sacker Tony Perez both holding their first workouts.

Morgan had been taking college examinations in California, while Perez was caring for his children, who were ill.

All the Reds players now are under contract and in camp.

Hisle Proves Worth Of Hitter; Twins Win, 12-4

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — American League owners, faced with dwindling fan interest, created the "designated hitter" to put more sock into their game.

So far, it's working beautifully. Minnesota nominated big Larry Hisle for the DH role in Tuesday's first exhibition baseball game and the Twins' 10th man murdered Pittsburgh.

Hisle hit two home runs off Pirates' right-hander John Lamb, one with the bases loaded, the other with two aboard, for seven runs batted in, as Minnesota won 12-4 under a blazing Florida sun.

It wasn't altogether fair.

Pittsburgh didn't use a designated hitter. The Pirates' pitchers took their turns at bat just as they have since Abner Doubleday supposedly invented the sport.

"I owe it all to my little son," said Hisle, a 27-year-old former Philadelphia outfielder. "I was chasing him around the house and stubbed my toe. I wasn't ready to play defense, so they made me the designated hitter."

While the Twins were in the field, Hisle tried to stay awake on the bench by making repeated trips to the water cooler. He had plenty of time to study the opposing pitcher.

When Minnesota was batting, the Twins pitchers took a rest and Hisle replaced them on offense, batting in the leadoff position.

It had been announced by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn that the designated hitter would be used only when two American League clubs were playing during spring training.

"It's not fair, playing nine men against 10," said Bill Virdon, manager of the Pirates. "But it doesn't really matter that much during spring training."

It stills appears to be up in the air as to whether American Leaguers will use DH against opponents from the National League during future games this spring.

"I don't plan to allow it the next time we play an American League team," Virdon said. "That is, unless the National League votes to allow them to go ahead and do their thing against our teams." That means the first test could come today. The Pirates are scheduled to face the Detroit Tigers in Bradenton, Fla.

Believe MAC Will Expand By 2 Schools

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Are Northern Illinois and Ball State the newest members of the Mid-American Conference?

If it's the truth, the conference would expand to 10 members and swell its ranks for the second time in three seasons.

Mentioned as the most likely candidates for MAC membership for the last several months have been Northern Illinois and Ball State, especially after the Midwest Conference of Universities they belonged to folded.

Both have enrollments and athletic programs and plants similar to current MAC schools.

The Council of Presidents, which governs MAC affairs, met here Feb. 9. Expansion was listed as one of the items on the agenda.

After the closed-door meeting, MAC Commissioner Fred Jacoby and Dr. Phillip R. Shriver, Miami president and council chairman, announced:

"The question of expansion has been deferred, pending further study. Final disposition probably will be made sometime this spring."

Those close to the conference contend the presidents postponed an immediate expansion announcement so they could visit the campuses of the new members and go over conference regulations.

Tigers Depend On Pinch Hitters

DETROIT (AP) — Flak flew freely and frequently from baseball critics when the Detroit Tigers failed to make any big trades after the 1972 season.

"They won the American League East title and so they figure they can stand pat," echoed writers and broadcasters alike.

Some figured Detroit needed to acquire a high-calibre starting pitcher. Others cried for a solid hitter. Some shouted for both.

That was a few months ago. The noise has died down, mostly muffled by the publicity given the new "designated hitter" rule.

The eternal optimism of General Manager Jim Campbell and Manager Billy Martin also quelled much of the press pessimism about the upcoming season, along with the generally accepted realization that Martin can work wonders with his platoon tactics.

Many clubs undoubtedly have outstanding potential designated hitters—who, according to the rule, will be allowed to bat each time in place of the usually weak-hitting pitcher.

But the Tigers may have the best of the lot. Martin's list of designated hitter candidates is, potentially at least, awesome. He has Frank Howard, Gates Brown, Al Kaline, Tony Taylor, Duke Sims, and more.

Kaline is 38, yet he is still trim and agile and may play as much as ever in right field. But he is often hobbled by leg injuries, as is slugger Jim Northrup, and the designated hitter job would be ideal if moderately disabling injuries hit them this season.

Howard slumped badly last year, batting just .242 and only hitting 10 homers. But he is a constant long ball threat and Martin said he might even use him as a leadoff designated hitter, giving the huge righthanded slugger up to five shots a game at the 340-foot left field fence.

The biggest problem with Detroit last year was anemic bats. Hitters like Northrup, Willie Horton, Dick McAuliffe and Aurelio Rodriguez just didn't knock in runs like they were expected to do.

Others were hot and cold and nobody had an excellent year at the plate.

The volatile Martin is quick to insist the team is capable of going all the way this year. The "aging" Tigers are really in their prime, he and Campbell say.

Pitcher Mickey Lolich, who had a 22-14 record and 2.50 earned-run-average last year, is back with a $100,000 contract as the team's No. 1 starter.

Shortstop Eddie Brinkman, 1972 Tiger of the Year, set five major league fielding records but is coming off serious back surgery. Rodriguez is a vacuum at third and there are few fielding questions at other positions.

Bill Freehan is an All-Star catcher, backed up by Sims.

Outside of pitching, no rookies are expected to crack the lineup.

3 Tourney Berths Unfilled

NEW YORK (AP) — Only three berths remain uncommitted in the nation's two postseason college basketball extravaganzas, and even those are pretty much spoken for.

All spots in the NCAA Championships have been doled out to conference champions or at-large teams, or are reserved—either for the champions of conferences whose races have yet to be decided, such as the Big Ten or Southeastern, or for the winner of the Atlantic Coast Conference's playoff tournament this weekend.

And the National Invitational Tournament has already received acceptances from 13 schools—Notre Dame, American U., Virginia Tech, Fairfield, Rutgers, Manhattan, Missouri, Oral Roberts, Louisville, Massachusetts, Southern Cal, New Mexico and Marshall—for its 16-team field.

Who'll get the three open NIT berths?

"We are watching the Big Ten, the ACC and the SEC races," declared Peter A. Carlesimo, chairman of the NIT selections committee. "If any of our choices from those areas don't accept, then we'll look into the independents situation again."

The Big Ten race is tied between third-ranked Minnesota and ninth-ranked Indiana. Each has one game remaining Saturday; should both win or lose, a playoff would be necessary to determine who gets the league cro and the NCAA invitation. The NIT will almost certainly invite the loser.

Claim Toms Job Plans A Conflict

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Highway Traffic Safety Administration spokesmen had no comment Tuesday on a report that outgoing administrator Douglas V.
Toms is taking a job with an Ohio company that has Transportation Department contracts.

An attorney with Ralph Nader's
Public Interest Research Group said
Toms is leaving the federal government April 1 to join AMF-American Machine and Foundry Co., Vandalia, Ohio.

Attorney Clarence Ditlow said AMF has been recommended by Toms' office for a follow-on contract to the $1.5 million research project under which it designed a 5,500-pound experimental safety vehicle (ESV) for the Transportation Department.

Ditlow attributed his information to insiders with the agency and said, if the facts are correct, Toms' action in joining AMF "is certainly of questionable propriety and represents a conflict of interest. Either the agency should not award a contract to AMF," he said, "or Toms should not take the job with AMF."

Toms submitted his resignation to President Nixon in January, as did many other agency heads. No successor has been named and he still is in office. He has not publicly disclosed his plans.

An aide said Toms was en route to Kyoto, Japan, to attend an international conference March 13-16.

Babylonians personified the planet
Mars as Nergal, god of the underworld; the Greek as Ares, god of war, and the Romans as Mars, an overpowering figure armed with spear and shield.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a determination now to do things exactly as you wish and unless you show some consideration for others, you could get into a difficult situation. Use today to delve into payments and collections. Make new plans for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Obtain advice from an expert for the data and ideas you need to get ahead faster in business. Use your intuition when buying clothes and you won't go wrong. Show more kindness to mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) By getting your health and wardrobe improved you become a more charming and dynamic person. Entertain good friends to whom you owe a debt and show that you like them. Avoid arguments.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Private affairs you have need a more worldly approach for best results. You can make a big hit with the one you love tonight. Courtesy and good manners are very important at this time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) More sociability with those you like and admire brings the right results today. Think over your finest aims and direct your energies in such directions. Take time for relaxation.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you take time to please higher-ups, this could lead to more success and support in the future. Use more practical methods to gain your finest aims. Use extreme care in travel today.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Making new contacts and expanding your activities is wise now. Obtain the information you need at the right sources. Don't jump into any activity without first being properly prepared.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who likes to deliberate a good deal before coming to decisions. This could be a drawback, so teach the power of decision early in life. The religious life is fine here. Give the finest ethical training and teach work habits at an early age. Politics could also be a fine outlet here. Spiritual understanding is fine, too. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC is broadcasting a movie tonight called "The Six Million Dollar Man." It's packed with distemore dialogue, but its first 30 minutes may prove very interesting for viewers interested in aerospace, medicine or both.

The show's basis is the application of a relatively new medical science called bionics — the ability to electronically and mechanically duplicate functions of living systems.

The systems in this case are the right arm and both legs of a former U.S. astronaut who loses them in a crash while testing a "lifting body" aircraft involved in the space shuttle program.

The movie begins with events leading to the crash; it incorporates actual government footage of lifting body tests, including chilling cockpit and exterior shots of one of the little ships fluttering downwards like a poorly designed paper glider.

There also is a blurred picture on a television monitor of what seems to be the crash — on landing — of a lifting body craft. If it's not the McCoy, it sure fooled me.

From there, it's on to the hospital, where the battered astronaut, stoically portrayed by Lee Majors, is persuaded to become a human test lab for the most recent advances in bionics.

The nerve endings of his crippled frame are attached to life-like legs and a new arm. The gear moves as would its human counterparts; all of it is powered by tiny atomic motors that give Majors' mechanical limbs incredible strength and endurance. With training, he becomes a sort of a superhero, although despite his awesome new powers he can be killed like any ordinary man.

The bionics aspect of the show, which drew some technical advice from the University of California at Los Angeles prosthetics department, is fascinating to a point.

That point stops right when we learn the operation and equipment, all $6 million of it, has a base purpose.

A government dirty-deeds agency, the Office of Strategic Operations, has picked up the tab because it wants the remade astronaut for certain missions it has in mind.

The OSO chief — a cold, calculating rascal played by Darren McGavin — tells Majors he'd prefer a robot rather than a man because it seems robots lack emotions. "But you are the optimum compromise in the current state of technology," he sighs.

And as the plot thins, we learn Majors is supposed to use his superhuman powers to free a powerful Arab who has been kidnapped by terrorists. The key to peace in the Middle East lies in his rescue. This 90-minute show, a pilot for what could become a TV series, is based on "Cyborg," a book by veteran aerospace and military writer Martin Caidin of Cocoa Beach, Fla.

Ohio Assembly Hears Foes Of Equal Rights Amendment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Opponents of the women's equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution got a boost from their top national spokeswoman Tuesday night at the final public hearing before the House State Government Committee.

Mrs. Phyllis Schafley — author, mother, and housewife from Alton, Ill., appeared to testify before the committee and another overflow crowd on the emotionally-charged issue, which seeks to ban discrimination on the basis of sex.

Mrs. Schafley's testimony reiterated statements in her own monthly publication, "The Phyllis Schafley Report," that the proposed constitutional amendment would eliminate the responsibility of husbands to support their families. It would make the wife "equally responsible" for 50 per cent of the family's support, she said. She said, "No more radical piece of legislation could have been devised to force women outside of the home."

Mrs. Schafley is the author of five books, including one best seller about Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential candidate, entitled "A Choice, Not An Echo." She received a standing ovation from the more than 300 persons jammed into the House hearing room for the last of four public hearings. Committee Chairman Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, said he expects the panel to vote on the amendment within the next week or two-sending it, if it gets a favorable vote, to the House Rules Committee for assignment to a floor vote. Whether Ohio ratifies the amendment could become a moot question for this year in view of actions by other state legislatures. Reports Tuesday night said 28 had ratified with 38, or three-fourths of the states, required for enactment. It was also reported, however, that eight states had rejected the amendment. The proposal is in trouble in several other states, Mrs. Schafley said.

She told the committee she has visited nine states besides Ohio, and that seven of those rejected the amendment. It was brought out in testimony, however, that states are free to reconsider. The states have six more years to act on the proposal. In other legislative developments, the Senate voted 26-4 to allow land to be appropriated for highway purposes in the Middletown area from tracts set aside for cemetery use, but not yet developed. Sponsoring Sen. Donald E. Lukens, R-4 Middletown, was not present to explain the bill. Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, carried it on the floor, explaining that the bill extends appropriating authority only for a two-year period and involves only a single highway project. He said it has been traditional for the legislature to act on individual appropriation cases which involve cemeteries because of the "emotionalism" they sometimes produce. The House, by a vote of 78-10, but after more than an hour of debate, sent to the Senate a measure permitting the state to pay the costs of putting up safety flashing devices at unprotected railroad crossings. Opponents contended that the railroads should bear responsibility for protecting crossings. William Coulter, acting chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents, told the Education Section of the House Finance Committee that state universities may be in financial trouble under spending proposals contained in the Gilligan administration's $9.7 billion, 1973-1975 budget. The administration proposed giving universities an increase in their operating subsidies of 3 per cent a year after the regents recommended 6½ per cent. Coulter said he believes the universities would "barely be able to meet expenses" under the amount proposed in the budget. University presidents are to testify Wednesday afternoon in their organized effort to lobby the legislature for more money. They will appear at a hearing before the Education Section after a House floor session scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Jay O. Tepper, administrative assistant to Gov. John Gilligan, appeared before the Finance Committee's General Section to explain a 10 per cent increase in the budget to run the governor's office for two years starting July 1. The requests totals $1.7 million. Tepper said the 10 per cent increase represents "normal progression" of salaries and other benefits for the 40 persons on Gilligan's staff, and for increasing costs of maintenance, supplies, and equipment as a result of inflation. "The Governor's office is very tightly budgeted."

Rep. Allan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, introduced a new House bill which would have the state collect and administer municipal income taxes in Ohio. Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, called in another House measure for extension of laws banning sex discrimination in employment to firms with 10 or fewer employees and to political subdivisions. Among four bills received in the Senate were proposals by Sen. Ronald Mottl, D-24 Parma, to include occupational hearing loss under workmen's compensation coverage, and by Sen. Paul Matia, R-25 Westlake, to ban sex discrimination in the lending of money and the extension of credit.

able to take advantage of numerous additions to the base bids because all came below the estimated amounts figured by architects. The entire construction finally came to $19.58 per square foot, well below the $23.57 estimated for passage of the bond issue.

The school and parking sites, which will have a total area of 149,192 square feet, will occupy about half of the 63 acres owned by the board.

Board President Nelson Stevens noted earlier that the school district had been extremely lucky in all its planning for the school. Apparently, at the time the bids were accepted, there was a shortage of large construction jobs available. Many of the firms bidding for the vocational school had lost out at other bid openings and were in heavy competition for this job.

The Bellefontaine firm's bid at base was $1,428,200 but the bid accepted was $1,753,900. For the additional $325,000, the school board purchased blacktopped parking areas and driveways, plantings and landscaping, lockers, interior painting of the shop areas and two greenhouses for the horticulture area.

Vocational School Director Ralph Neal noted the board's members were elated at the prospects for the school at the meeting Tuesday night.

The mechanical contract to provide plumbing, heating and air conditioning was awarded to Best Way Mechanical, Zanesville. Their $575,544 bid also included a large spray booth which will be utilized by both the agriculture and auto body shops.

Receiving the contract for electrical work was Gustav-Hirsch Organization, Inc. That Columbus firm bid $514,980 to secure the contract with alternates.

Dittmar and Stubbs, architects, are checking with the Knowlton firm today to see how soon they will be able to begin work at the Crouse Chapel Road location. It is hoped that initial work can be underway this month.

Mainly About People

Mrs. Donald Leist, Oakland City, Ind., formerly of Circleville is a patient in room 4126 Deaconess Hospital, Evansville, Ind.

Mrs. Robert Willison, Route 4, was dismissed Tuesday from St. Anthony Hospital, Columbus, following surgery.

The board discussed ground-breaking ceremonies but made no decision on the matter.

Plans were made to begin a search for supervisors and supervisor interns to be employed very soon. These people will be in charge of working up specifications, meeting with salesmen and preparing bids for equipment.

Two Injured In 2-Car Mishap

The Ohio Highway Patrol investigated a 2-car accident at the intersection of Route 23 and 752 12:40 p.m. Tuesday. Both drivers were injured and taken to Berger Hospital for treatment.

According to the patrol's report, James C. Mahon, 42, Columbus was northbound on Route 23 when the car driven by Susan Hempker, 24, Circleville, pulled into his path.

The investigating officer charged Susan Hempker with failure to yield the right of way.

Marc Smith also received a star progress award and Laurence Smith was presented with a 12-year service pin for his service to scouting.

Cycle Driver Hurt In Mishap

A car-motorcycle collision 5:06 p.m. Tuesday on E. Ohio St., 200 feet west of S. Washington St., resulted in minor injury to the driver of the cycle.

Raymond Walsa, 25, 224 Third Ave., complained of injury after his motorcycle struck a car driven by Elijah Brown, 51, 225 E. Ohio St.

According to the report of Ptl. Jack Mills, Brown was attempting to make a turn on E. Ohio St. when he pulled his car into the path of Walsa's cycle.

Ohio Assembly Hears Foes Of Equal Rights Amendment

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Opponents of the women's equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution got a boost from their top national spokeswoman Tuesday night at the final public hearing before the House State Government Committee.

Mrs. Phyllis Schafley — author, mother, and housewife from Alton, Ill., appeared to testify before the committee and another overflow crowd on the emotionally-charged issue, which seeks to ban discrimination on the basis of sex.

Mrs. Schafley's testimony reiterated statements in her own monthly publication, "The Phyllis Schafley Report," that the proposed constitutional amendment would eliminate the responsibility of husbands to support their families.

It would make the wife "equally responsible" for 50 per cent of the family's support, she said. She said, "No more radical piece of legislation could have been devised to force women outside of the home."

Mrs. Schafley is the author of five books, including one best seller about Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, the 1964 GOP presidential candidate, entitled "A Choice, Not An Echo." She received a standing ovation from the more than 300 persons jammed into the House hearing room for the last of four public hearings.

Committee Chairman Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, said he expects the panel to vote on the amendment within the next week or two—sending it, if it gets a favorable vote, to the House Rules Committee for assignment to a floor vote.

Whether Ohio ratifies the amendment could become a moot question for this year in view of actions by other state legislatures. Reports Tuesday night said 28 had ratified with 38, or three-fourths of the states, required for enactment.

It was also reported, however, that eight states had rejected the amendment. The proposal is in trouble in several other states, Mrs. Schafley said.

She told the committee she has visited nine states besides Ohio, and that seven of those rejected the amendment. It was brought out in testimony, however, that states are free to reconsider. The states have six more years to act on the proposal.

In other legislative developments, the Senate voted 26-4 to allow land to be appropriated for highway purposes in the Middletown area from tracts set aside for cemetery use, but not yet developed. Sponsoring Sen. Donald E. Lukens, R-4 Middletown, was not present to explain the bill.

Sen. Michael J. Maloney, R-7 Cincinnati, carried it on the floor, explaining that the bill extends appropriating authority only for a two-year period and involves only a single highway project. He said it has been traditional for the legislature to act on individual appropriation cases which involve cemeteries because of the "emotionalism" they sometimes produce.

The House, by a vote of 78-10, but after more than an hour of debate, sent to the Senate a measure permitting the state to pay the costs of putting up safety flashing devices at unprotected railroad crossings. Opponents contended that the railroads should bear responsibility for protecting crossings.

William Coulter, acting chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents, told the Education Section of the House Finance Committee that state universities may be in financial trouble under spending proposals contained in the Gilligan administration's $9.7 billion, 1973-1975 budget.

The administration proposed giving universities an increase in their operating subsidies of 3 per cent a year after the regents recommended 6½ per cent. Coulter said he believes the universities would "barely be able to meet expenses" under the amount proposed in the budget.

University presidents are to testify Wednesday afternoon in their organized effort to lobby the legislature for more money. They will appear at a hearing before the Education Section after a House floor session scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

Jay O. Tepper, administrative assistant to Gov. John Gilligan, appeared before the Finance Committee's General Section to explain a 10 per cent increase in the budget to run the governor's office for two years starting July 1. The requests total $1.7 million.

Tepper said the 10 per cent increase represents "normal progression" of salaries and other benefits for the 40 persons on Gilligan's staff, and for increasing costs of maintenance, supplies, and equipment as a result of inflation. "The Governor's office is very tightly budgeted."

Rep. Allan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, introduced a new House bill which would have the state collect and administer municipal income taxes in Ohio. Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, called in another House measure for extension of laws banning sex discrimination in employment to firms with 10 or fewer employees and to political subdivisions.

Among four bills received in the Senate were proposals by Sen. Ronald Mottl, D-24 Parma, to include occupational hearing loss under workmen's compensation coverage, and by Sen. Paul Matia, R-25 Westlake, to ban sex discrimination in the lending of money and the extension of credit.

Bellefontaine Firm Awarded Vocational School Contract

Knowlton Co. was awarded the contract for the construction of the Pickaway-Ross Joint Vocational Center at the Crouse Chapel Road site in northern Ross County.

The PRJVS board of education was able to take advantage of numerous additions to the base bids because all came below the estimated amounts figured by architects. The entire construction finally came to $19.58 per square foot, well below the $23.57 estimated for passage of the bond issue.

The school and parking sites, which will have a total area of 149,192 square feet, will occupy about half of the 63 acres owned by the board.

Board President Nelson Stevens noted earlier that the school district had been extremely lucky in all its planning for the school. Apparently, at the time the bids were accepted, there was a shortage of large construction jobs available. Many of the firms bidding for the vocational school had lost out at other bid openings and were in heavy competition for this job.

The Bellefontaine firm's bid at base was $1,428,200 but the bid accepted was $1,753,900. For the additional $325,000, the school board purchased blacktopped parking areas and driveways, plantings and landscaping, lockers, interior painting of the shop areas and two greenhouses for the horticulture area.

Vocational School Director Ralph Neal noted the board's members were elated at the prospects for the school at the meeting Tuesday night.

The mechanical contract to provide plumbing, heating and air conditioning was awarded to Best Way Mechanical, Zanesville. Their $575,544 bid also included a large spray booth which will be utilized by both the agriculture and auto body shops.

Receiving the contract for electrical work was Gustav-Hirsch Organization, Inc. That Columbus firm bid $514,980 to secure the contract with alternates.

Dittmar and Stubbs, architects, are checking with the Knowlton firm today to see how soon they will be able to begin work at the Crouse Chapel Road location. It is hoped that initial work can be underway this month.

The board discussed groundbreaking ceremonies but made no decision on the matter.

Plans were made to begin a search for supervisors and supervisor interns to be employed very soon. These people will be in charge of working up specifications, meeting with salesmen and preparing bids for equipment.
